LIBRARY SERVICE AT RELOCATION CENTERS

FOREWARD

The method of operating school and community libraries has varied from center to center as WRA has progressed. In some instances Community Activities initiated and is currently operating the community library. At other centers a trained librarian on the Education staff has exercised general supervision over both school and community libraries.

The purpose of the recommendations which follow is to answer questions which have been raised from time to time concerning library operations and suggest a means whereby the following objectives may be achieved:

- A. Library service for both school and community under trained supervision.
- E. Establishment of a library board of evacuee representatives with responsibility for community library policy.
- C. Space, staff and suitable supplies to maintain adequate library service for a population of project size.
- D. Optimum use of library facilities for stimulation of education, leisure time reading for school children, youth and adults, and promotion of relocation.

1. Each center should have a trained librarian, Junior Professional Assistant Grade, at a salary of $2000 per annum. She should be an experienced graduate of a recognized library school. The trained librarian should be on the staff of the Superintendent of Education and responsible to him for all matters concerning school library policy.

2. In general, the technical supervision of the community library should be under the trained librarian. In special instances, where the project director believes the community's interest will be better served by another arrangement, separate responsibility for the direction of the community library may be assigned. Even in such instances, however, the advisory services of the trained librarian should be utilized.

3. Policy-making for matters relating to the community library should be the responsibility of an evacuee library board to be named by the Community Council or otherwise representatively selected. It is recommended that the Chief of Community Management or his designated representative(s) (e.g., Community Activities Supervisor and /or Night School Superintendent) be ex officio members of the library board. It is also suggested that a member of the Relocation Guidance Committee be designated to work in close liaison with the library board. Among other things, the library board should:

- a. determine the location of branches of the community library.
- b. approve or disapprove recommendations of the trained librarian for purchase of new books for the community library.
- c. allocate to school and community libraries all books received by donation or gift.

4. Apart from the trained librarian, all school and community library employees should be recruited from the evacuee population. Sufficient staff should be assigned to do the necessary accessioning, circulation, readers' advisory service, book repair, and other work essential for the provision of adequate library service. The trained librarian should instruct and supervise library assistants and prescribe and direct the general plan of library operation.

5. It is recommended that a union catalog be maintained for the school and community libraries. Each library should accession its own books with the union catalog maintained in both places by the exchange of duplicate cards between the two libraries.

6. Each school at the center should have its own library.

7. Branches of the Community Library should be housed separately from the school library. Such branches or stations should be at points within the project which are readily accessible to all residents. Adequate library service should be afforded to the hospital.

8. In conjunction with the Community Library, but in a separate location if it appears desirable, there should be a relocation library with suitable material concerning all phases of life in the United States. A set of the WPA Federal Guide books should be part of the collection on hand, together with available data, including maps, concerning the population, area, climate, agriculture, industries, social aspects, and other features of life in the cities, states and regions in which relocation of evacuees is likely to take place.

9. The school and community libraries should be equipped with suitable shelving, appropriate reading tables and chairs, adequate lighting, typewriters, card catalogs, and other essential library supplies. The WRA budget for 1944 earmarks the sum of $1000 at each center for such provisioning.

10. A book repair shop should be instituted at the center with adequate staff and materials. It should be the function of this shop to keep school and community library books and school text books in a proper state of repair.

11. Community library service should be available at evening hours and also at suitable hours on Saturday and Sunday.

12. A rental library may be operated within the framework of the community library. In such case, recent fiction, mystery novels and other volumes for which the temporal demand exceeds what can be justified in regular library book purchases may be ordered and paid for by Consumer Enterprises. The rental shelf should be in the community library only and should be serviced by the regular branch librarian, at no expense to Consumer Enterprises beyond the original purchase of the books. Such books should be regularly catalogued with the project library on a gift or purchase basis. As an alternate method of financing such book purchases, an independent book cooperative may be established.

13. The center libraries should establish contact and maintain relationship with other public and university libraries, the American Library Association, and church and other groups, with the object of improving school and community library service and furthering the relocation of library staff trained at the center.

14. The libraries should carry on promotional and educational work within the project by special exhibits, record concerts, film showings, preparation of book reviews, story telling for children, and in all other suitable ways.

15. All books in the Japanese language which are not the personal property of individuals should be included in the community library's circulating stack on exactly the same basis as any other books in the library collection. Although use of the English language should be encouraged, these books should be available for use of the residents who are not literate in the English language.

A list of all books and other reading materials in the Japanese language should be prepared in triplicate by the trained librarian, giving the title and author in each case. One copy of this list should be filed with the project director, a second should be sent to the Director in Washington, and the third should remain in the library's records.

The project director, in such manner as he sees fit, should be assured that the Japanese books in the library collection are free from subversive content.

NOTES ON RELOCATION CENTER LIBRARIES

The elementary and high school population of the ten relocation centers operated by the War Relocation Authority for evacuees from the West Coast, is approximately 25,000. Contrary to the general trend of school population over the country there are more pupils of high school age than of the lower grades.

Libraries have been established or are now being set up at all of the relocation centers.

In most cases there is a chief librarian of non-Japanese ancestry in charge and two or more assistants usually of the evacuee population. Other workers in the library are recruited from the evacuee population. In many cases teachers waiting assignment to their regular duties have assisted in the libraries.

The centers are partially supplied with books which have been provided by gifts from city and county libraries, university collections and private donations. All of the centers and the two in California, Tule Lake and Manzanar, in particular have benefitted by a number of books which were originally donated for use at the assembly centers. When these assembly centers were closed the books on hand were moved to the relocation centers.

A small amount of money is provided by the War Relocation Authority for the purchase of books at the discretion of the project director and the school authorities, particularly those most needed for research and school work. The books donated, as is often the case, are many of them old and therefore do not supply all of the needs.

It is interesting to note that at the Colorado River project at Poston, Arizona, these books which are not wanted for general circulation have been set apart as well as old magazines and are being used for the contagious ward at the hospital before they are discarded. At this center also under the direction of evacuee assistants at the library, a regular hospital service has been established by the library and deliveries are made to the patients on Thursday afternoons.

At the Minidoka center in southern Idaho gifts and loans of books from many sources have been reported including churches, the Oregon and Washington State Libraries and the Seattle Public Library. This latter institution has just sent a consignment of some 200 very desirable books. The Idaho State Traveling Library has offered to lend books upon receiving a specific request.

Not all of the libraries at the relocation centers are yet housed in separate buildings intended for this purpose. Recreation halls and other buildings are being used. Due to the shortage of lumber it has been impossible as yet to provide all the shelving needed in many of the libraries. This situation is being remedied as fast as possible and the evacuees who have been working in the library and the entire population of the centers are showing a fine spirit of cooperation.
