Dear Yoshiko:

I am more sorry than I can say that we do not feel we can publish THE LONELY RABBIT or your poems. We like both the prose and the poetry, but alas, not quite enough to be able to say Yes.

We have several animal folktales already on our list, and although Chibi has a nice twist at the end, we just do not feel it is quite strong enough for us to be able to publish it with real success.

As for the poems, we find that we are more successful with thematic books of poetry than with straight collections of multi-theme poems. We like several of the poems very much indeed, and we were happy to have had a chance to read them. I only wish that I could give you different word about both books!

It was so good to see you the other day and I hope that you are feeling well and that Arkansas was not too tiring! My warmest good wishes to you.

Yours,

Susan Hirschman

P.S. The two manuscripts are regretfully returned herewith.

Dear Susan:

It was so good to see you again at the Little Rock Symposium, and I appreciate your willingness to take a look at the enclosed revision, now titled, THE LONELY RABBIT.

I am also taking the liberty of enclosing a few of my poems. I have a collection of about fifty, of which these are a small sampling. If you feel you could consider doing a collection, please let me know, and I will send along the others.

I'll look forward to hearing from you, and will keep my fingers crossed! It would be a great joy to work with you!
All the best,

Encl: The Lonely Rabbit

⑧ Poems: Musibos
Rapheerres

P.S. As you know, I am with Margaret McElderry at Atheneum, but her list is ~~not~~ <sup>over</sup> full, she could not accomodate the above.

Dear Ellen:

It was good of you to give us a chance to consider Yoshiko Uchida's UNTIL THE SHORES OF HOME. While we admire much about her work, I am afraid this novel is not for us, and I am returning it to you with regret.

Sincerely,

Susan Hirschman
