PROCEEDINGS
of the
1964 Pre-Primary Convention
of the
California Labor Council on Political Education

Wednesday, April 8, 1964
California Hall
625 Polk Street, San Francisco

The 1964 Pre-Primary Convention of the California Labor Council on Political Education was called to order at 10:17 a.m. at California Hall, 625 Polk Street at Turk, San Francisco, California, by Albin J. Gruhn, President.

President Gruhn led the delegates in the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

Invocation

President Gruhn presented the Reverend Andrew Juvinal, Pastor of the Hamilton Methodist Church, San Francisco, and Chairman, Commission on the Church and Economic Life of the Northern California-Nevada Council of Churches, who delivered the following invocation:

"O God, our Father, we invoke thy blessing upon this Convention assembled for a lofty purpose. We pray that the American labor movement may continue to be a mighty force for justice in our nation and in our world. Guide with wisdom those who make decisions this day and in subsequent democratic parleys, to the end that our nation may be ruled by men of courage and vision who act in the best interest of all the people.

"In the name of the Carpenter of Nazareth, we pray. Amen."

WELCOME TO DELEGATES AND VISITORS

Albin J. Gruhn, President

President Gruhn then addressed the convention:

"Delegates, in welcoming you to this 1964 Pre-Primary Convention of the California Labor Council on Political Education, I am sure that you are fully aware of what the real stakes are in this crucial election year. The extremists of the radical right and radical left are circling like vultures ready to move in and fill the vacuum caused by indifference and confusion in the political life of the local, state and national communities. The fundamental purpose of the California Labor Council on Political Education is to prevent this from happening by encouraging the workers, without regard to race, creed, color, national origin or ancestry, to register, to vote, and to exercise their full rights and responsibilities of citizenship. This organization has fulfilled and will continue to fulfill this fundamental purpose. In our so doing you must ever keep in mind our basic nonpartisan political policy of 'Electing our friends and defeating our enemies' irrespective of party affiliation, in the tradition of the late Samuel Gompers.

"In relating political education to the end results of the legislative process, organized labor has always been in the forefront in sponsoring and working for measures that have made our great country a better place in which to work and live. We are not satisfied with the status quo. We want our government on the local, state and national levels to move forward vigorously in meeting the unmet needs of today and the challenges of today and the future. These are adequately spelled out in the legislative program of the National AFL-CIO. They are also given to you in detail in the California Labor Federation's "1963 Sacramento Story" and in the report of Secretary-Treasurer Pitts to this Convention. I urge you to read them if you have not done so.

"In conclusion I wish to report that it has been my privilege to have had the opportunity to participate in a number of local COPE workshops conducted by our Assistant Director of COPE, Fred Smith. I was pleased to see the interest displayed by our affiliates at the local level, in this program to develop strong and effective grass-roots COPE organizations. Much yet needs to be done in this area, particularly in the matter of obtaining 100 percent affiliation of local unions. This also holds true on the state level. With your cooperation and help I am sure that we can accomplish this objective, so that labor's destiny as an effective and continuing voice in the interest of the little people will be assured."

ADDRESS

The Honorable John F. Shelley Mayor of San Francisco

President Gruhn then introduced the Honorable John F. Shelley, Mayor of San Francisco, who addressed the delegates.

"Yes, I stood at this very platform before and used to have this gavel in my hand. It is a pleasure to have an opportunity to come here today in a different capacity and welcome you to the City of San Francisco.

"You know, on New Year's Day a very famous columnist here in San Francisco had an article in which he was prophesying what various people, personalities and characters in town might say or do during the year 1964. On towards the bottom of it he said, 'Sometime during 1964 Jack Shelley will say, "Why didn't I stay in Congress?"'

"A couple of times in the last couple of months, with some of the problems with which I have been confronted (they don't seem to be lessening, but increasing), I thought to myself, 'Why didn't I stay on that bakery wagon?'

"But you don't go backwards. You move ahead, you meet the issues and you meet the problems. And in my welcoming you here today, with the wish and the hope and the prayer that you will do a job on behalf of your membership, that you will consider well the positions you take in endorsing candidates and the positions on issues, which I know you will do, several thoughts have gone through my mind; and they tie right to the idea that you don't stand still, nor do you go backwards.

New Problems Confront Us

"We are living in a time of great change—great change in this country, in this City, in this State, and great change throughout the world. None of us can look at what we did yesterday or how we did it and say 'That applies today.' We are confronted with new problems, and, as your President said, pressures from newly developed rightist groups that are as strong as some of the old pressures, from some of the extreme-left groups, that many of us went through over the years. New tactics, old techniques polished up, but all of them boil down to an attempt to capture the minds and the imagination of men and mold them into different pathways.

"Down through the years the labor movement has achieved its position because of the policy it followed of trying not to get hold of the minds of men but guide them into fields of action and activity which would be of benefit for the general community and for society in general. There is nothing more needed today than a reaffirmation of that policy in dealing with some of these new problems; and at the same time that we, each of us individually and all of us collectively, who have these basic philosophies reaffirm our belief in these ideas, we have to recognize the changes with which we are surrounded and with which we are confronted. We must recognize, too, that there are people in this country whose lot has not been as good as ours. We must do this to subscribe and live up to and pray day by day for that basic tenet of the labor movement: that we do not discriminate against anybody because of their race, their religion, their color or their ethnical background.

All Americans Must Share in Progress

"We are living in an era almost of revolution in the demands of some people to achieve the desires that they have had in their hearts and minds for years but have been blocked from for, oh, some say a hundred years, let's say 300 or 350 years since they first came to this country.

"We cannot survive as a nation, nor can any single segment of it, whether it be a city, a state, the labor movement or a business group survive, if it is going to say, 'We are better than you or you or you.' When we do, we are completely repudiating that which has made our country great and which has made the labor movement strong.

We Must Truly Work For Endorsed Candidates

"As you give consideration to the candidates whom you will endorse to the positions on the issues, may I say in all friendliness, and as one who has had the privilege and the pleasure of working with you through the years, don't let it stop with this meeting. A great deal of organization work and education work amongst your own members is needed to put it into effect. The opposition works by trying to confuse people, by trying to distort the issues, and the only place to which the members of the trade-union movement and the working people in general can look or come to have the confusion cleared up is through the trade-union organizations and through COPE and the officers of COPE and the local unions holding meetings, educating the members, not that 'Well, we have endorsed (so-and-so)' or 'We are against this measure or for that measure', but explaining why. And this is so important.

We Must Defeat Initiative to Repeal Rumford Act

"One of the most important measures before the people of California in the coming elections will be the initiative to repeal the Rumford Housing Act. And this is a misnomer. It is not an initiative just to repeal. Because it goes further and it writes into the Constitution of California that which has never been there. It writes in a basis of vicious hate and division and spoils. And I know that these exist in all walks of life.

"You might say, 'Well, this isn't particularly my problem'. Believe me, it is your problem just as it is the problem of the Negro, the Mexican-American or any group which has had discrimination practiced against it. And it is going to be a fight—a real fight; and I know, and I know your officers know too, that the greatest contribution towards defeating this initiative and keeping the Rumford law on the books will rest with the labor movement and the religious movement of this State, which will operate on a combination program of the application of sound Christian principles and the defense of democratic rights. Because if this kind of a constitutional amendment can be written in on a basis of hatred because of color or race, then the foundation is laid for another attempt to write in constitutional amendments against the organization of workers and their chance to improve their lot.

"I could not help but take this opportunity to make those few remarks to you.

"In conclusion, I want to say, 'Welcome to San Francisco'. We had a little difficulty in the last couple of days arranging this nice weather for you, because this is the time we usually have the fog in the morning and the afternoon, but we got on the 'hot line' and they said, 'Tell the boys to come to town. Everything will be all right.' And I had dinner with the Chief of Police last night, and he said, 'Tell your friends and old associates and colleagues tomorrow, Jack, we will treat them gently, we will treat them hospitably, but I would appreciate it if we didn't have to treat them at all.'

"I told him that I knew the best-behaved and the most orderly conventions that ever came to San Francisco were the labor conventions, and I also know that the waitresses, waiters, bar boys and bartenders tell me that the best-tipping conventions are the labor conventions. They are better than the bankers, business men and everybody else. So everybody was glad to see you come to San Francisco.

"I sincerely hope that you will have a successful Convention, that your deliberations will be deliberate, that your conclusions will be sound, that the positions you take and the candidates you endorse will reflect progress and will reflect improvement for your members and for the working people of this State.

"Good luck! Godspeed!"

Report of Committee on Credentials

The motion was seconded and carried.

(e) Any delegate who is called to order while speaking shall, at the request of the Chair, be seated while the point of order is decided, after which, if in order, the delegate shall be permitted to proceed. The same shall apply while an appeal from the Chair is being decided.

REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL AND ENDORSEMENTS BY THE CONVENTION

Thos. L. Pitts, Secretary-Treasurer

President Gruhn then called upon Secretary Pitts, who presented the following report on endorsement recommendations of the Executive Council:

"The Executive Council of the California Labor Council on Political Education, together with the duly appointed Advisory Committee, met in the Del Webb TowneHouse, Tuesday, April 7, 1964, to interview candidates for the office of U.S. Senate in the primary elections of June 2.

"Following the interview period, the Advisory Committee made its recommendations to the Executive Council.

"The Executive Council then met in separate session and made the following recommendations to the convention."

"We now have arrived at the area of recommendations for the various congressional seats for our State, totaling 38. We will give you by district number the recommendation of the Executive Council, proceeding on to the entire 38 districts. If there is one with which someone might disagree or on which someone might have an additional thought that he or she would like to express, then we would ask of you that you raise your objection at that time; and I shall set it aside and proceed on through the balance of the 38 districts; and then after we have taken care of those where there is no problem, we shall return to those by their numerical order that have been set aside."

Committee on Credentials

Chairman Wayne J. Hull of the Committee on Credentials presented his committee's final report, making a total of 683 delegates. On his motion, duly seconded, the report as a whole was adopted by the convention.

Committee on Resolutions

Chairman Thomas A. Small of the Committee on Resolutions read the following resolution:

"Resolution No. 1 "Study of Constitution

"Presented by the Executive Council of California Labor COPE

"Whereas, The Constitution of California Labor COPE was adopted in San Francisco on December 9, 1958; and

"Whereas, It has remained substantially unmodified with the exception of simple conformity amendments adopted by the 1960 Pre-General Election Convention regarding officers and the composition of the Executive Council; and

"Whereas, On the other hand there have been numerous changes in the election laws of the State of California, including the repeal of 'cross-filing' in primary elections, which have raised questions in regard to the adequacy of our

COPE procedures in the endorsement of candidates; and

"Whereas, It is desirable to review these procedures and other constitutional provisions in the light of the aforementioned and other changes; therefore be it

"Resolved, That this 1964 Pre-Primary Convention of the California Labor Council on Political Education, meeting in the City and County of San Francisco, direct the Executive Council to study the California Labor COPE constitution and report its recommendations for any modifications to the next Convention for appropriate consideration.

"Referred to Committee on Resolutions."

Chairman Small reported that the committee recommended concurrence, and he moved the adoption of the committee's report. After seconding, the motion passed.

Chairman Small then thanked his Committee.

President Gruhn then discharged the committee with thanks.

Committee on Constitution

Chairman Wilbur Fillippini of the Committee on Constitution reported there had been no resolutions requiring constitutional consideration. On his motion, duly seconded, the report was accepted and the committee discharged.

Authorization for Supplementary Actions

Secretary Pitts then presented the usual concluding motions:

"In keeping with earlier remarks in this convention, I have some motions which we commonly term 'wrap-up' motions to be presented to you at this time.

"The first one is that I would move that wherever and whenever an office is left open, on the action of this convention, the Secretary-Treasurer, subject to the approval of the Executive Council, shall be given full power to act and make endorsements, after consultation with the local COPE, if any, where they exist."

The motion was seconded and passed.

Secretary Pitts requested and was granted permission to make some brief remarks before his next motion.

"In some cases the local COPE used language which was ambiguous and might be interpreted to mean either that 'No endorsement' at all be made or simply that the district be left 'Open.'

"I would move accordingly that where this convention has acted on the recommendations of the Executive Council in such few cases, the Secretary-Treasurer be authorized to clarify with the local COPE that the intent of the language was properly interpreted and, if not, to make appropriate changes subject to the approval of the Executive Council."

The motion was duly seconded and carried.

Secretary Pitts then presented the last motion:

"I move that the Executive Council be authorized to withdraw the endorsement of any candidate should his actions be detrimental to the labor movement."

The motion was duly seconded and passed.

Secretary Pitts' Closing Remarks

President Gruhn then called on the Secretary, who made the following concluding remarks:

"I have not talked to you but just for a few moments after the opening of this convention, and I am not going to delay you with any long speech at this present time.

"Much could be said about what has transpired in our great State of California since we last met in a Pre-General Election Convention. I think that we could go into lots of details about what has happened to us politically down through 1963 and what we expect will happen to us in 1964 and 1965. Much of what has happened to us in 1963 and will happen to us in 1965 and, of course, for some of the years ahead, depended upon and depends upon every bit of activity that is put out by our local organizations throughout the entire state.

"We have worked pretty diligently at trying to put together and build a more active Labor Council on Political Education and contribute as much as we possibly can to the building of local COPEs in the areas where sometimes this program has been rather sadly neglected. We have met with a good measure of success; and a measure of good cooperation is responsible for it.

"In the local areas the Assistant Director, Fred Smith, has traveled from time to time and from place to place. We have worked out good programs—programs with people who are interested, who are dedicated to the job of trying to serve the political area and work in that arena, in which we must work in order to preserve that which we have gained on the economic front as far as the labor movement is concerned. And for that we are grateful.

"I think, too, that we can probably accept a little pat on the back throughout the entire State, in all of the local COPE areas, for this job that has been done. It has not been easy, because the officers in those areas have numerous duties. They are generally loaded down, overburdened with work. The bulk of this work has had to be done in the more rural areas, not so much in the heavily industrialized areas of the State. But we think it is going to pay dividends ultimately to the people who have contributed their time and efforts, and it will pay great dividends to the members of our organizations throughout the State.

"I want simply to say 'Thanks' to you for all that you have done in supporting the recommendations of the Executive Council, because they did give a great amount of time and deliberated very carefully on the recommendations that were before them from the local COPE organizations throughout this State.

"I say 'Thanks' to you for having conducted yourselves in such a splendid, orderly fashion in a convention of this type where sometimes emotions run a little bit high. I think your decisions have been intelligent, I think that we will profit by them, and we will speed ourselves down a road in this year of 1964 that will lead to better and greater opportunities to serve the working man and woman in the State of California in the fashion that they should be served by the politicians of our State and our land.

"Thank you for this opportunity and I am happy to have seen you all here in the City of San Francisco."

Adjournment

On Secretary Pitts' motion, duly seconded and passed, the convention was adjourned sine die at 1:27 p.m.

REPORT OF SECRETARY-TREASURER

To the 1964 Pre-Primary Convention of the California Labor Council on Political Education:

Greetings!

The intervening months since the 1962 general election—the period covered by this report—have been marked by numerous developments that challenge the labor movement to more effective political action. Beyond question, the complexity of the many issues confronting the working man today in his never ending struggle to maintain his identity and achieve a measure of economic security in our modern industrial society has demonstrated the interdependence of economic and political action by organized labor. Indeed, as indicated by the increasing pervasiveness of job security problems as the pace of technology and automation advances, we are compelled more and more to assert the necessity of government responsibility in many areas where heretofore collective bargaining alone provided an effective vehicle for the negotiation of workable solutions by labor and management.

Collective bargaining has continued to mature, and its viability as one of the most effective democratic institutions in our free society is being demonstrated daily with each new accord and groundbreaking advancement. The fact remains, however, that the socio-economic problems of our modern industrial society are also mounting daily, and many of them affecting employment opportunities transcend the ability of collective bargaining units to effectively cope with them by economic action independent of political action.

Each election year carries with it a new sense of urgency. This election year is no exception, but the urgency lies in evolving more practical methods of relating our political activities to our economic and social objectives on a day-to-day basis in terms of performance by those whom we help elect to office. If there is a lesson to be learned from the period under review, it is the tenuous nature of the relationship between the successes scored at the polls at the 1962 general election and the legislative performance that followed. The assumption that there is an automatic and direct carry-over from the political arena to the legislative front is without foundation. While there are many factors influencing performance, it is abundantly clear that a spirit of political activity during election campaigns without the functioning of COPE organizations on a year-round basis invites legislative irresponsibility. By the same token, fragmented political activity outside the COPE structure compounds the problem and encourages legislators and other public officials to frustrate the common goals of the labor movement by catering to separate groups, and playing off one against the other.

In both respects—unity of action and continuity of action—the AFL-CIO movement in California is far from realizing its full potential in the political area. To the extent that the level of political organizations lags behind the organization of the trade union structure along economic lines, we are weakened in our efforts to induce a greater assumption of responsibility by government to achieve full employment goals and come to grips with economic security problems of workers that transcend the capacity of collective bargaining.

In the face of these political realities the major thrust of California Labor COPE activities since the last general election has continued in the direction of strengthening the COPE structure throughout the state. Through educational conferences and intensive field activities, priority has been given to the development of year-round political action programs at the local level, the achievement of greater unity, and the effective coordination of registration and other related campaign efforts.

1962 GENERAL ELECTION

The 1962 general election campaign marked one of the most intensive political efforts of the California labor movement since the defeat of the right-to-work initiative in 1958. Richard M. Nixon's bid to bolster his sagging political stock nationally by entering the gubernatorial race against Governor Edmund G. Brown posed an immediate threat to progressive government and the welfare of working people. The anti-labor forces spawned in 1958 had never stopped working. Bolstered by the emergence of the radical right, they migrated toward the campaigns of their favorite candidates. Richard Nixon's roster of campaign leaders read like a "who's who" of the "right-to-wreck" movement of four years earlier.

The Brown-Nixon gubernatorial battle gave impetus to a higher level of political interest and activity. With the financial assistance of the national AFL-CIO COPE, major registration and get-out-the-vote drives were launched through local COPE organizations under close coordination of the California Labor COPE. Although such drives resembled more a "crash" program than a culmination of intensified year-round political activity, they produced significant results that made the successes scored by labor in the 1962 general election possible.

In addition to its deep involvement in these "grass roots" activities, the state COPE distributed through cooperating local organizations more than 1,100,000 endorsement pamphlets carrying labor's recommendations for statewide as well as district offices. The pamphlets were printed and distributed in ten variations for major areas of the state to facilitate the identification of district office endorsements by union members and their families. A special pamphlet was developed in the gubernatorial race to drive home the sharp contrast between the record of Governor Brown's administration and Richard Nixon's official record of support of the special interests that have financed and directed his turbulent political life. Approximately 800,000 of these pamphlets were put in the hands of voters throughout the state by organized labor. Special efforts were also made during the campaign through the state COPE to develop usable materials for the labor press. A new employee with a press background was added to the professional staff of the state COPE for this purpose, and he was continued on a permanent basis following the campaign. This, in turn, was supplemented by a weekly cartoon service that produced the best political cartoons of the entire statewide general election campaign.

Gubernatorial and Statewide Races

Governor Brown's re-election triumph over Richard Nixon by a vote margin of approximately 300,000 astounded even seasoned political observers, and indicated clearly that California's citizens had rejected retrenchment programs in favor of progressively-oriented state government. The extensive campaign efforts of COPE organizations clearly established the right of AFL-CIO members to claim a share of the credit for this victory, which constituted a clear-cut mandate for imaginative, forward looking programs to cope with the acute social and economic needs of our ever burgeoning population. As indicated above, however, the fact that this mandate was not carried to fruition to the extent that might have been anticipated by the election results in district legislation races as well as the statewide contests, indicates the magnitude of the political challenge before us.

In analyzing the gubernatorial vote we find that Governor Edmund G. Brown chalked up his heaviest pluralities in the San Francisco Bay Area and in the Counties comprising the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valley areas. These three regions provided the governor with 277,349 or more than 87% of the 314,931 vote plurality by which he vanquished Richard M. Nixon.

On a statewide basis, Governor Brown, with 59.5% of the state's voters registered as Democrats, polled 52.7% of the vote. The fact that some 78.5% of the state's registered voters trooped to the polls on November 6, an unusually high percentage for an off-year election, heightened the finality of Nixon's defeat and demonstrated again that candidates backed principally by special interest forces have little hope of winning if voters are adequately informed and turn out in force.

The Federation's analysis divided the state's 58 counties into seven regional groups. These were the 7 Bay Area Counties; the 10 Sacramento Valley Counties; the 8 San Joaquin Valley Counties; the 8 Southern California Counties; the 15 Mountain Counties; the 6 North Coast Counties; and the 4 Central Coast Counties.

On this basis, Governor Brown's plurality was obtained as follows:

Region	Composite % Vote for Brown	Brown Plurality
Bay Area	56.4	179,355
Sacramento	55.2	57,473
San Joaquin	55.8	40,521
Southern California	48.3	25,069
Mountain	54.7	12,716
Central Coast	48.9	—4,398
North Coast	51.2	4,122
Total		314,931

On a county by county basis, the election results indicated that a number of Republicans jumped party lines to vote for Brown. This was substantiated by the fact that in four Northern California counties—San Francisco, Marin, Plumas and Sierra—the percentage of the total vote that went to Governor Brown exceeded the percentage of Democrats registered in those counties.

In an additional 16 counties the vote for Brown was within 3% of the percentage of Democratic voters registered, indicating the probability of a considerable Republican vote for Brown. These 16 counties were: Alameda, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Solano, Modoc, Trinity, Nevada, Placer, El Dorado, Santa Barbara, Sacramento, Yolo, Shasta, Siskiyou, San Luis Obispo, and Napa. In Santa Barbara, however, Democrats held only 49.1% of the voters registered and although 48% of that county's total vote went to Governor Brown the county as a whole scored a 2,471 vote plurality for Nixon.

Los Angeles County, encompassing some 38% of the State's population with 57.3% of its voters registered Democrats, delivered 52.6% of its vote to Governor Brown to give him a plurality there of 115,409.

San Francisco, with less than 5% of the state's population and 62.8% of its voters registered as Democrats, threw 63% of its vote to the Governor to give him a plurality of 70,450. Other counties that rolled up pluralities of more than 10,000 votes for Governor Brown were:

County	Brown Plurality
Alameda	61,244
Sacramento	43,601
Contra Costa	20,476
Solano	12,210

Governor Brown carried 38 of the state's 58 counties. Of the 20 counties that Nixon carried only two provided him with a plurality in excess of 10,000 votes. These were Orange and San Diego Counties where Nixon scored pluralities of 52,063 and 44,937 respectively. Twelve of the remaining 18 counties carried by Nixon fell into his column by less than 1,000 votes.

In other statewide contests, handsome victories were scored by labor-endorsed candidates with the re-election by wide margins of Lieutenant Governor Glenn M. Anderson, Attorney General Stanley Mosk, State Controller Alan Cranston, and State Treasurer Bert A. Betts. In two statewide partisan offices, however, labor-endorsed challengers, Don Rose for Secretary of State and Richard Richards for U. S. Senator were defeated. In both of these races, the uphill struggle and difficulty of trying to unseat a well entrenched incumbent were amply demonstrated. U. S. Senator Thomas H. Kuchel won re-election by a vote margin approaching 725,000, while incumbent Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan piled up a better than 850,000 vote margin.

It is also apparent in the results of these two races that the California electorate does not vote a party ticket. Especially in the U.S. Senatorial contest, Thomas H. Kuchel's re-election to this high office demonstrates a deep-seated "independence" in California voting practices. Indeed, Kuchel's re-election as a Republican overcame the historic California tradition whereby the successful U. S. Senatorial candidates during gubernatorial election years have always been of the same political party as the successful gubernatorial candidate.

The major disappointment among the statewide constitutional offices was the rejection of labor's endorsed candidate, Ralph Richardson, for the non-partisan post of State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Apart from the quality of the candidates, and the overwhelming basic support for Richardson among school groups as well as labor, political observers have analyzed the victory of Max Rafferty as resulting from a combination of forces seeking change and those looking for simple solutions to complex educational matters. Ralph Richardson, on the other hand, was unjustly associated with the "status quo".

District Election Results

In the state's 38 Congressional races (including eight new districts gained out of the decennial reapportionment and being filled for the first time), the California Labor COPE made endorsements in 36 of the races. On the final tally, endorsed candidates romped to victory in 25 (72 percent) of the 36 Congressional districts in which endorsements were made. This included seven of the eight new Congressional districts in California that boosted the State's congressional delegation from 30 to 38. On a party basis, the election results altered the complexion of California's representation from 15 Democrats and 14 Republicans with one vacancy prior to the 1962 general election to 25 Democrats and 13 Republicans following the election.

Some of the principal highlights of the successes scored by COPE-endorsed candidates were:

- The election of Augustus F. (Gus) Hawkins in the 21st Congressional district in Los Angeles as California's first Negro Congressman.
- Re-election of the late Clem Miller posthumously in the first Congressional district, but this was later overturned when the COPE-endorsed candidate to replace Miller was defeated in a January, 1963 special election (see below).

—The defeat of three John Birch Society members, two of whom were incumbents.

In the state legislature, COPE-endorsed candidates scored equally impressive victories. A substantial majority of the new lawmakers who were sent to Sacramento, as well as returning incumbents, were elected with the endorsement of California Labor COPE on recommendation of local COPE organizations. For the state legislature as a whole, with exactly 100 legislative offices filled by the 1962 general election balloting, COPE-endorsed candidates were successful in more than 76 percent of the races in which endorsements were made.

In the State Senate, where half of the 40 member Upper House was elected, endorsed candidates were victorious in 78 percent of the races in which endorsements were made. Filling the 20 seats open in the Senate were 14 Democrats and 6 Republicans. Of the 13 Democrats who were running for re-election, 11 made it and two were defeated.

COPE endorsements were made in 18 of the 20 Senate races; 14 actually made it. Before the election, the Senate contained 29 Democrats, 9 Republicans and two vacancies. The distribution between parties was changed to 27 Democrats and 13 Republicans.

In the State Assembly, where all 80 seats were up for re-election, endorsements were made in 71 contests with a 74 percent record of success. In actual numbers, 52 endorsed candidates were elected to the Lower House.

The election outcome increased the Democratic Party majority in the lower house by 5 additional seats. The 1963 general session convened in January with 52 Democrats and 28 Republicans. When the prior general session opened in 1961, the Democrats held 47 seats to 33 for the Republicans. Just before the 1962 general election balloting, however, the Democrats held 42 seats and the Republicans 32, with 6 vacancies.

Of 31 Democrats seeking re-election in the general election, 28 won; and of 17 Republicans seeking re-election, 16 won. In 32 of the lower house races, therefore, no incumbent was in the running and new members were elected to the Assembly. California Labor COPE endorsed candidates in 22 of the 32 no-incumbent races and scored victories in 21 of them.

SPECIAL ELECTIONS

Four special elections to fill vacancies have been held in the interim period since the 1962 general election: three of them in Congressional districts and one in the upper house of the state legislature. In each of these special elections, California Labor COPE made endorsements through the Executive Council, on recommendations of local COPE organizations, and worked closely with the local labor movements involved in an effort to secure the election of the endorsed candidates.

Once again, the experience with special election contests has demonstrated the great urgency of establishing year-round COPE programs at the local level. Without such full time involvement in the political field, it becomes very difficult to put together an effective campaign on the basis required by special elections. In two of the three special elections involving Congressional districts, seats held by endorsed candidates were lost to non-endorsed candidates who won the special elections. In the single Senatorial district special election, labor's endorsed candidate barely squeaked through in a district that was held by a labor-backed incumbent for a number of years.

First Congressional District

As indicated above, based on a special campaign effort, Representative Clem Miller was re-elected posthumously in the 1st Congressional District at the 1962 general election despite his tragic death a month earlier in a plane crash near Eureka. The lack of any legal means to replace Miller's name on the ballot with a new candidate left no alternative but to press for Miller's re-election against his Republican challenger, Don A. Clausen of Crescent City. The success of this effort led to a special election in the 1st Congressional District to replace Miller, which was held on January 22, 1963.

Based on the recommendations of the 1st Congressional District COPE organization, the California COPE endorsed William F. Grader (D), the late Representative Clem Miller's field representative, against Miller's general election challenger, Don A. Clausen (R), in a two way race which also included another Democrat named John C. Stewart. The latter Democrat, however, was considered a maverick and not a serious challenger who would affect the outcome of the special election, except to the extent that Democratic votes might be drawn from Grader.

Both Grader, who generally embraced Clem Miller's program as his own platform, and his Republican opponent were interviewed by the 1st District COPE Convention held in Eureka on December 15. On most issues, the convention delegates found the two candidates to be "poles apart". Subsequently they unanimously advanced the recommendation for endorsement of Grader by the California Labor COPE. President John F. Kennedy also personally endorsed Grader's candidacy in a letter to Grader which read in part:

"I can appreciate why Clem Miller relied upon you so heavily. Because of your association with him, your broad experience, your awareness of the problems of the 1st District and your strong belief in his continuing progress, you are uniquely qualified to carry forward the work so well started."

The timing of the election, however, followed the "purge" of registration rolls of those who failed to vote at the November general election, thus cutting into the slim majority of the party of the endorsed candidate in a marginal district. A special pamphlet urging Grader's election was developed by the California Labor COPE and distributed within the District through local labor organizations. A major effort was made to get-out-the-vote, but only limited success was achieved, and Grader was defeated.

A tally of all 530 precincts in the District gave Clausen 79,111 votes to Grader's 64,740—a plurality of 14,371 votes. John C. Stewart, the other Democrat, polled only 1,631 votes. The District itself at the time of the election was composed of 215,436 eligible voters with Democrats outnumbering Republicans about 14,000.

It is recognized that in what is a marginal district by California standards, even though a significant democratic majority exists in the District, the incumbent Congressman, as an incumbent, will be very difficult to defeat.

23rd Congressional District

Following on the heels of the defeat in the 1st Congressional District, another Congressional seat was lost in a June 11, 1963, special election in the 23rd Congressional District of Los Angeles County, comprising the 38th and 52nd state assembly districts, following the death in March of the labor-endorsed incumbent Representative Clyde Doyle. The special election was won by Del M. Clawson, Republican Mayor of the City of Compton, who ran unsuccessfully against the late Rep. Doyle in the 1962 general election.

On recommendation of the Los Angeles County COPE, the California Labor COPE endorsed Carley V. Porter (D), a veteran legislator with 13 years service in the Assembly. In addition to his principal Republican opponent, Del M. Clawson, Porter ran against six other candidates, including four other Democrats and two more Republicans. Some 184,963 residents were registered and eligible to vote in the November 1962 general election but some 55,194 — nearly 30 percent—failed to go to the polls. As a result of the January 1963 purge, therefore, the total registration in the District was reduced to 139,194, consisting principally of 88,981 Democrats and 47,232 Republicans. Subsequent registration activities and the normal pickup in registration boosted the voter eligibility rolls by the date of the special election to some 92,000 Democrats and 50,000 Republicans.

The California Labor COPE provided direct assistance in the special election campaign concentrating on informing voters about the special election with major emphasis on turning out the vote.

On the fateful day, despite the heavy Democratic majority in the District, the District's 252 precincts gave Clawson, who had been defeated by Doyle by a 2-1 margin at the general election in 1962, some 32,086 votes to Carley Porter's 21,951. The six other candidates in the 8-way, high-man-in contest polled only a total of 7,097 votes. Of the 136,034 registered voters in the District, only 32.4 percent went to the polls. On a party basis, 66 percent of the district's registered voters cast their ballots for the Republican candidate, but only 23.8 percent voted for the Democratic Party's candidate.

Del Clawson's victory, added to the election of Don A. Clausen in the 1st Congressional District in January, cut the Democrat's margin in the California Congressional delegation to 23-15, as compared with 25-13 after the November 1962 election.

5th Congressional District

A third Congressional special election was held in the the 5th District of San Francisco on February 18, 1964, and resulted in the election, with labor's endorsement, of Assemblyman Phillip Burton to the House of Representatives without the necessity of a run-off election on March 17 under a new special elections primary law enacted by the 1963 legislature. This new primary law requires a run-off between the candidates receiving the highest votes from each of the two major parties in the absence of a majority vote for any one candidate, but Burton obviated the necessity for run-off by polling the required majority.

Burton replaced Congressman John F. Shelley, who resigned his seat in the heavily Democratic 5th Congressional District upon being elected to the office of Mayor of San Francisco. As COPE's endorsed candidate, Burton mopped up a clear majority of 50,297 votes cast in the special primary election, despite a cluttered field of four additional Democrats and three Republicans. Burton polled 26,269 votes or 52 percent of the total cast. The turnout of 50,000 plus voters amounted to more than 46 percent of the 108,963 eligible to vote in the District.

7th State Senatorial District

In another special election contest involving the 7th State Senate District (Placer, Nevada and Sierra Counties), Paul J. Lunardi, Democratic Assemblyman from Roseville, narrowly won an Upper House seat vacated as the result of Governor Brown's appointment of Senator Ronald G. Cameron to the Placer County Superior Court last summer following the adjournment of the 1963 general session. Lunardi's victory, as the California Labor COPE's endorsed candidate, leaves a vacancy in the 6th Assembly District vacated by Lunardi, comprising Alpine, Amador, Calaveras, El Dorado, Inyo, Mariposa, Mono, Nevada, Placer, Tuolumne and Yuba counties.

The special primary election in the 7th Senatorial District was held on November 5, 1963, with a special run-off election scheduled for December 3, but the majority of votes gathered by Lunardi precluded the run-off. The COPE-endorsed candidate polled 7,514 votes to 7,000 for Frank Sevrens, a Republican publisher. Because of the overlapping areas covered by Lunardi's former Assembly District and the 7th Senatorial District to which he was elected, it was anticipated that the Democratic Assemblyman would have little trouble in his race to fill Cameron's seat in the Upper House. Instead, in some of the major areas where Lunardi won heavy majorities as an Assembly candidate in the 1962 general election, Lunardi barely squeaked by in his bid for the Senate. Another seat held by a labor-endorsed incumbent came dangerously close to being lost.

STRENGTHENING THE COPE STRUCTURE

Recognizing early in 1963 that well organized and well financed right wing extremist groups, with their eyes already fixed on the 1964 elections, were intensifying their efforts to subvert social and economic progress, your secretary-treasurer immediately expanded efforts to strengthen the unity and structure of COPE units throughout the state and to inform and alert the membership.

Equally evident was the need, on a year-round basis, for active functioning local COPE units to keep their membership both informed and prepared to act on local and state issues as the need arose.

These goals were emphasized in the course of personal reports to local movements made by your secretary, on the activities of the 1963 sessions of the legislature.

Workshops Organized

To implement realization of these goals, Fred C. Smith, assistant State COPE director, was assigned to organize and develop materials for a series of California Labor COPE workshops to be held throughout the state during the summer and fall of 1963. In recognition of the autonomous status of our local councils, scheduling and programming for the workshops was geared to the desires and direction of the local officers.

Handbook and Aids Developed

A 50-page California Labor COPE workshop handbook, pegged principally to the four cornerstones of our COPE effort—registration, education, get-out-the-vote and election analysis—was developed to be used in conjunction with the workshops.

Using films and other visual aids, the workshop sought to survey the scope of the local COPEs' activities and to provide materials and methods to simplify, improve and accelerate their jobs. It also sought to analyze specific problems in specific local areas and to develop programs and techniques tailored to local capabilities and conditions.

The workshops reviewed Election Code changes effected in 1961 and 1963 and stressed the acute need for the development of voter registration card files of our union membership in view of the rapidly increasing use of computers in county clerks' offices throughout the state, which affords an opportunity to vastly accelerate voter registration work.

The development of union voter registration file cards, containing the essential raw data necessary to utilize the computers, is essential to any effective modernization of labor's traditional registration and get-out-the-vote techniques.

14 Workshops Held

During a period extending from the latter part of June through the middle of November, 1963, California Labor COPE conducted more than a dozen such workshops, generally encountering a high degree both of interest and enthusiasm.

More than 500 county and local COPE leaders participated in the 14 workshops held. Average daily attendance at the workshops, most of which were 2-day meetings, was 36—despite a disappointing turnout at two of them, which significantly lowered the average.

Dates and locations of the workshops were as follows:

June 25-26—Monterey Tri-Council COPE at Salinas.

June 28-29 — Santa Barbara-Ventura Counties COPE at Santa Barbara.

July 9-10 — Kern, Inyo, Mono Counties COPE at Bakersfield.

July 11-12 — Fresno-Madera Counties COPE at Fresno.

July 16-17 — San Diego County COPE at San Diego.

August 14—Humboldt-Del Norte Counties COPE at Eureka.

September 24-25 — Alameda County COPE at Oakland.

September 28-29 — Santa Clara County COPE at San Jose.

October 2-3 — San Joaquin-Stanislaus Counties COPE at Stockton.

October 8-9—Riverside-San Bernardino Counties COPE at Riverside.

October 11-12 — Contra Costa County COPE at Concord.

October 23-24 — Fresno-Madera Counties COPE at Fresno (2nd workshop.)

October 30 — Solano County COPE at Vallejo.

November 23-24—Orange County COPE at Santa Ana.

Without exception, however, the workshops served to bring together the county clerk or registrar of voters and the county's labor leadership for a candid discussion of mutual problems and policies which generally resulted in a number of constructive suggestions.

Registration Card Files

A step-by-step analysis of various means of setting up card files, including various cost estimates, spurred considerable interest when it was made evident that adoption of the use of special "tripco cards" could reduce the labor involved in establishing such files at least seven-fold.

Subsequently, California Labor COPE, acting as a central purchasing agent, ordered more than a half million such cards printed, and to date, more than one-third of that initial order has already been distributed to local and county COPEs at cost. Tremendous savings have been realized by this centralized ordering system.

The workshops also served as an opportunity to discuss mailing practices and postage rates with local union leaders, resulting, in a number of cases, in suggestions through which such bodies could effect substantial savings in their postage costs through changes in their present mailing practices.

Research Materials

Projections of each county's over-21 population for the years 1964 and 1966 were also included in the workshop Handbook to give county COPEs an early estimate on the size of the registration job confronting them in both of those election years.

In addition, the Handbook contains three maps of political analysis which (1) compared voter turnout by party in 1962; (2) showed the county-by-county performance against Propositions 23 and 24; and (3) the percentage of the county vote and votes per precinct for Governor Brown in 1962.

A series of tables at the back of the Handbook provides analysis of each of the two major parties' votes in the 14 most popular counties and an analysis of the registration increase between June and November 1962, among other things.

Some Key Problems

Two key problems reiterated in a number of the workshops dealt with volunteers — where do you get them? — and fund raising — how do you do it successfully?

While there were no pat answers, the consensus indicated that in the case of volunteers too often the job to be done was insufficiently mapped out before the volunteers were called in. As a result when the volunteers arrived they spent a substantial part of their time spinning their wheels and, subsequently, lost interest and refused to respond to later appeals.

This served to pinpoint the problem as basically one of organization, demanding development of detailed instructions — setting forth the what to, where to, when to, how to, and why to—for the volunteers before calling them in.

Secondly, more direct methods of recruiting volunteers were suggested. Where a call for volunteers at a central labor council meeting fails to produce results, a direct telephone appeal to the homes of union members asking for help from the union member or his or her spouse was urged.

A third problem discussed in connection with the recruitment and utilization of volunteers related to the necessity of delegating responsibility to get the job done. The stumbling block in this connection, the consensus indicated, was again that too often the limits of the responsibilities delegated were inadequately spelled out.

For successful fund raising, workshop participants were quick to point out that the program or activity undertaken as a fund raiser must be popular or have a broad appeal to the local community and, secondly, it must be thoroughly publicized—not just by one or two notices or stories in the local community paper and a few announcements at union meetings, but by radio announcements, store window posters and direct phone promotion.

The workshops also vocalized the need for a thoroughgoing revitalization of local union and central body education committees both for education on issues and general education on what the trade union movement is.

One of the key problems here, it was felt, resulted from bottlenecks in the dissemination of educational materials.

“The clearest and most convincing argument on any issue is utterly useless if, after it’s printed, thousands of copies of it wind up in bundles in union offices gathering dust,” one workshop participant pointed out.

Progress

Since the major revitalization drive initiated in the fall of 1961 when an analysis revealed that there were only about seven active year-round COPEs in existence, the state’s COPE structure has expanded to include 27 active county COPEs and four congressional district COPEs. These COPE jurisdictions include approximately 97 percent of the voting population in California.

But the process of stimulating and strengthening this structure remains a continuing challenge. In view of the shrill and rising voices of the racists and other extremists now in California, it is incumbent upon us in this election year not only to mount our most successful registration and get-out-the-vote campaign but also to embark upon an extensive and intensive education drive to counteract and refute the many distortions the extremists are disseminating.

The problem of improving our potential effectiveness, as discussed below, compounds the challenge.

Essential to our success is the development of political activity that enhances political unity within the COPE structure. Therefore, as a matter of basic policy, all activities of state COPE undertaken in cooperation with local movements, will of necessity continue to recognize only the official COPE structure at the local level. Registration drives, get-out-the-vote drives and other coordinated state-local programs for the forthcoming primary and general elections discussed below are being developed in the light of this organization objective.

ELECTION CODE CHANGES

Aside from an abortive effort to reimpose cross filing and a fight within the Democratic Party over a so-called “truth-in-endorsements” law which was subsequently enacted, a number of significant changes were effected in the State Elections Code during the 1963 general session of the California legislature.

Voting Hours

Perhaps the most important changes affecting organized labor's political activities are contained in three new laws dealing with the extension of voting hours to 8 p.m. on election day:

AB 1195 requires counties using voting machines in all precincts to remain open until 8 p.m. on election day. If voting machines are used in less than all precincts the Board of Supervisors may, by resolution prior to publication of the notice of election, provide that all polls remain open until 8 p.m. Chapter 723 of 1963 statutes.

AB 1537 provides that counties with a population exceeding 300,000 shall keep the polls open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. on any election day. Chapter 940 of 1963 statutes.

SB 747 allows the Board of Supervisors of any county as well the Election Board of any city or county to provide by resolution that the polls shall be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. on election day, including primary elections. Chapter 507 of 1963 statutes.

Both AB 1195 and SB 747 afford opportunities to extend the time available to get workers to the polls after work if the Boards of Supervisors respond affirmatively to a request for an extension of voting hours to 8 p.m. on election day. It should be noted that SB 747 also authorized the election board of any city or county to extend the voting hours by resolution.

In any case, such resolutions must be adopted prior to the publication of the notice of election. The notice of election is required to be published locally at least 10 days before a general election and at least 5 days before any special election such as a primary.

Since such notice may be published well in advance of these dates, county and Congressional district COPEs should, as soon as possible, explore the possibilities of prevailing on their Boards of Supervisors to extend voting hours until 8 p.m.

There is little doubt that such an extension would accrue to the advantage of organized labor's get-out-the-vote drives. The voting record of working people falls consistently and substantially below the voting record of conservative factions which, selfishly and misguidedly, generally oppose improvements in the lot of the wage earner.

The stock answer liable to be encountered in opposition to an extension of voting hours is that it will mean either an additional hour's pay for poll booth workers or no additional pay resulting in a reduction in their generally meager remuneration.

But this is not an insurmountable problem by any means. President Kennedy's Commission on Registration and Voting Participation recommended just last November that all polling places in the nation be kept open throughout the day and remain open until at least 9 p.m.

The Commission pointed out that by keeping most voting places open till 9 p.m. real bottlenecks to a greater voter turnout could be eliminated.

Moreover the greater voter turnout in other western democracies is attributable in part to the longer period of time allowed. In Italy, for example, citizens may vote all day Sunday and until Monday noon.

Absentee Voting

A measure which may help spur the use of absentee voting rights by union members is AB 74, which requires a notification to the voter to be printed on sample ballot envelopes informing the voter of his right to apply for an absentee voter ballot.

Heretofore, perhaps largely due to lack of information, the absentee ballots have generally run two to one against labor-endorsed candidates. If this provision, which is presently scheduled to remain in effect only until January 1, 1965, is given an opportunity to operate, it might significantly decrease the large gap between registrations and votes cast in California elections.

SB 191, another absentee measure, permits the return of absentee ballots up to 5 p.m. the day before an election instead of not less than three days before the election and permits persons who have applied for and received absentee voter ballots to vote in person up to 5 p.m. on the day before the election in the County or City Clerk's office.

Other Changes

In an effort to curb practices tending to intimidate voters near the polling place, the Legislature also passed AB 1116 which prohibits the placement of signs relating to voters' qualifications or speaking to a voter on the subject of his qualifications within one hundred feet of a polling place.

Among other Election Code changes which should be noted here are the following:

AB 1329 sets forth procedures and permits voters confined to a hospital, sanitarium, or nursing home just a few days before an election to vote by absentee ballot.

AB 295 provides a new method of changing one's registration from one precinct to another without requiring the execution of a new affidavit of registration. The procedure requires the County Clerk to accept U.S. Post Office change of address cards and, subsequently, to establish that the voter's move is permanent and not temporary.

AB 3042 provides for a primary election to be held on the fourth Tuesday before the day of a special election to fill any vacancy in Congress or the Legislature in a special election. However, since the measure provides that all candidates shall be listed on one ballot in such special primaries, the measure, in effect, amounts to a return to cross-filing in California in special elections.

AB 2947 permits city and county employees during off duty hours to participate in political activities involving state and federal offices, but carries the following restrictions on participation in local political activities: prohibits officers and employees of a local agency from receiving or soliciting political contributions from other personnel at the agency, from soliciting and receiving political contributions on agency property with specified exemptions, from promising employment benefits to officers or employees of the agency, from participating in political activities while in uniform and from taking an active part in a campaign for or against any candidate for office of the agency, or for or against any ballot measure relating to the recall of an officer of the agency. It also provides that limitations set forth under existing law regarding political activities of state employees are the only restrictions on such employees, with specified exception where the officer or employee engages in "incompatible activity."

REAPPRAISAL OF POLITICAL EFFECTIVENESS

As indicated earlier, the successes scored at the polls at the 1962 general election gave every indication that the climate for progressive legislation in major areas affecting the economic security of workers and the general welfare of the public had been significantly improved. Thus, the prospects for constructive action ran high as the Executive Council of the California Labor Federation, AFL-CIO, met in December 1962 prior to the commencement of the 1963 general session of the California legislature in January to put the finishing touches on labor's legislative program as advanced earlier by convention action. More than 100 legislative proposals were presented to the state's lawmakers as a comprehensive and forward-looking blueprint to enhance the conditions of life and labor of more than 6 million workers in California. It was pointed out that the community of interest uniting the general voter and organized labor was amply evident in the 1962 general election when labor-endorsed candidates won the support of the general voter in nearly three out of every four races. In this respect, the aims of organized labor's legislative program reflected that community of interest.

Yet, after almost six months of continuous session in Sacramento and labor's assessment of its gains and losses at the general session, it was reported in the SACRAMENTO STORY that the 1963 session "reflected a divided and confused legislature, lacking in orientation toward social and economic objectives," thus leaving behind it "an uneven record of achievement, failure and inaction."

Indeed, the SACRAMENTO STORY contained a blunt warning that the sorry performance in Sacramento demanded "an accounting on the part of some key legislative leaders and individual members of the legislature whose penchant for power, prestige, and acceptance caused them to place the interests of special privilege above those of the general welfare, and who turned their backs on the very people who helped elect them to office."

Special Conference on Legislative and Political Issues

The sequence of events, both legislatively and politically, coupled with the growing evidence of unrest manifested at the political action workshops conducted locally by the California Labor COPE in cooperation with the COPE organizations of central labor bodies, gave rise to the necessity of calling a special statewide conference representative of the strongest possible cross section of the state AFL-CIO movement to review and revamp ways and means of assuring unity of action in both the political and legislative fields. Accordingly, the conference was convened at the Sheraton Palace Hotel in San Francisco on December 5, 1963. In the interest of getting a broadly based consensus of opinion on what needs to be done, the special conference call was directed to the secretaries of all central labor councils, craft councils and similar bodies at the local, regional and state levels, as well as to designated representatives of international unions throughout the state. More than 150 key labor representatives attended the day-long session, even though it was made clear that the conference itself had no official status since the Constitutions of the California Labor COPE and the California Labor Federation, AFL-CIO, assign all policy functions between conventions regarding political and legislative matters respectively to the Executive Councils of the organizations.

While the conference produced a strong consensus favoring remedial action on the legislative front, the focus of attention on the political front was drawn to the necessity of programming ahead to "more effectively relate endorsements and campaign efforts to the achievement of legislative goals." The following principles were evolved from the consensus of the labor leaders on political action matters:

- The evaluation of performance records of individual legislators should take into consideration not only floor votes, but also the legislators' activities and performance behind the scenes and in legislative committee operations. Prior to actual endorsements, the records and activities of individual legislators should be reviewed with closer communication between the state and local labor movements.
- Particular attention must be given to making endorsements more meaningful under California's closed primary system, to the end that the strongest possible candidates are developed, with special attention to the composition of the electorate in each Assembly, State Senatorial and Congressional district.
- Closer coordination of endorsement procedures through the official COPE structures is essential at both the local and state levels to preclude the fragmentation of labor's strength, which invites legislators to play off one labor organization against another to the detriment of the labor movement as a whole.

- Vigorous adherence to the principle of labor's non-partisan political action is an absolute necessity to guard against the possibility of either party's directing labor's political activities.

These principles that evolved out of the special conference were carried to the Executive Council of the California Labor COPE for consideration at its January meeting earlier this year. Accordingly, as a means of implementing the consensus, the Executive Council recommended to local COPE organizations that in the consideration of their recommendations for endorsement in the primary election, special consideration be given to the following types of districts:

1. Districts that are Republican in character where organized labor should be considering the endorsement of the Republican incumbent based on his record, or encouraging a primary opponent on the Republican ticket.
2. Districts that are Democratic in character by registration and where organized labor should be giving consideration to encouraging opposition on the Democratic ticket against an incumbent who has turned his back on the people who elected him to office.
3. Marginal districts that are neither basically Republican or Democratic in character that require special consideration as follows: (a) Development of strong support for either an incumbent Democrat or Republican who has a good record and is in trouble; (b) Support for an incumbent Republican or Democrat who shows promise, and, (c) Development of a candidate in either party in the primary to unseat an unsatisfactory incumbent in the general election.

PRE-PRIMARY CONVENTION CALL

The official call to the Pre-Primary Endorsement Convention of the California Labor COPE was sent out to all affiliates on February 7, 1964, setting the date of the convention for Wednesday, April 8, 1964, in California Hall, San Francisco. The business of the convention was declared to be the endorsement of candidates for the United States Senate, the House of Representatives, and the State Legislature in the statewide primary election to be held on Tuesday, June 2, 1964.

In a Convention Call message to affiliates, your Secretary-Treasurer reiterated the major points of the earlier "consensus" in these words:

"In this crucial election year, we are challenged to relate our political activities more effectively to the achievement of labor's economic and social goals.

"The persistence of high levels of unemployment and idle productive capacity in the face of hugh pockets of poverty and a vast backlog of community needs leaves no choice for organized labor. We can no longer tolerate further procrastination among those who claim the friendship of working people.

"In today's automated society, the exercise of public responsibility on the part of legislators and other government officials is a precondition to the attainment of economic security and full employment. It is labor's obligation, in turn, to help keep public servants responsible to the people who elected them to office.

"The political tradition of the AFL-CIO is to 'elect our friends and defeat our enemies.' The success of this effort, however, is measured not alone in the numbers elected, but in the performance of those who attain public office with the effective support of working people.

"In this pre-primary convention, therefore, our endorsements must capture the full potential of the labor movement. There are no short-cuts. We can accomplish our purpose and preclude the fragmentation of labor strength only by achieving closer coordination of endorsement procedures through the official COPE structures at both the local and state levels.

"At the same time, we must vigorously assert the principle of labor's non-partisan political action and guard against any possibility of either party's directing labor's political activities."

At this writing, local COPE organizations have begun the process of reviewing records and interviewing candidates for recommendation to the Executive Council of the California Labor COPE and the body of the convention. The full assistance of the State COPE organization has been extended to local groups in this effort.

Issues Guides for Interviewing Candidates

Following past practice, extensive issues guides for interviewing district candidates at both the state and federal level were developed by the State COPE office and sent out to all central labor bodies and local COPE organizations engaged in the interviewing process. An effort was made in the preparation of the guides to place greater emphasis on fundamental issues, coupled with succinct descriptions of labor's policy positions, while at the same time devising alternative responses for the candidate, to extract more explicit answers. Accordingly, the preface to the issues guides cautioned interviewing bodies as follows:

"The issues developed (in the guide) are not intended to cover the full range of labor's interests and involvement in the legislative process. Their purpose, rather, is to measure the candidates' basic commitment to the welfare of working people as producers, consumers, and citizens in our modern industrial society. Individual interviews should be conducted in depth as desired locally, but each candidate seeking labor's endorsement should be required to indicate clearly where he or she stands on . . . fundamental issues."

The 1964 primary election guide grouped the fundamental issues for candidates for state legislative office under these headings: State Labor Law; Unemployment Disability Insurance; Unemployment Insurance; Workmen's Compensation; Health Insurance; Farm Labor; Civil Rights; Planning for Growth and Full Employment; Taxation; Housing; Consumer Protections; Education; Social Welfare Legislation; Water Resources Development.

In the federal office guide, the issues for interviewing candidates were grouped under the following categories: Economic Policy and Planning for Full Employment; Public Needs and Federal Expenditures; Shorter Work Week; Manpower and Skill Development Programs; Poverty; Minimum Wage Increase and Expanded Coverage; Labor-Management Relations Legislation; Federal Standards for Unemployment Insurance; Other Social Security Improvements; Civil Rights; Housing and Community Development Programs; Education; Consumer Protections; Farm Labor; Water Resources Development; Congressional Reform.

Under COPE procedures, the interviewing for district offices is carried on at the local level, while the interviewing of candidates for statewide office is conducted by the Executive Council of the California Labor COPE. In this pre-primary convention the only statewide office in question is the U.S. Senatorial seat currently held by Clair Engle, whose tragic illness and incapacity have brought forth a number of challengers in both parties. The interviewing of these candidates, based on the federal issues guide, is the responsibility of the Executive Council at its meeting scheduled for April 7 at the Del Webb TowneHouse on the day preceding the date of the convention.

SERVICES TO LOCAL COPEs

Aided by additional staff, the California Labor COPE office in San Francisco has continued to expand its services to COPE organizations at the local level. In addition to providing up-to-date statistical information on voting patterns, the political composition of districts, registration changes and population projections, every effort has been made to provide local COPE organizations with background information necessary to the development of effective year-round political action programs. The handbook distributed at the various local workshops noted previously is a specific example of such expanded services. Illustrative of the kind of information in the handbook is the section reviewing the future potential for the use of computers to speed up and simplify voter registration drives, the inclusion of information on how to mail more for less, and estimates of potential voters in 1964 by counties and similar information.

As an aid in combating the growing menace of rightist groups, the California Labor COPE is making arrangements through the National AFL-CIO COPE for distribution in California of 3,000 copies of the semi-monthly Group Research Report on radical right organizations during the year ahead. The 3,000 copies are to be mailed in bulk to the San Francisco Office of the California Labor COPE and from there they will be mailed out individually or in smaller bulk packages as the distribution process is worked out with the local COPEs and other affiliates. These group research reports have established beyond question the close working relationships between the radical right extremists and anti-labor forces supporting various "right-to-work" campaigns and other efforts to further outlaw bonafide activities of labor unions.

It was pointed out in connection with the workshops held locally during the past year that growing emphasis is being placed on the use of card files by local unions and central labor bodies to establish some continuity in union voter registration activities. To accelerate and simplify the creation of such card files the California Labor COPE is making available, at cost, special 3" x 5" voter registration file cards.

The cards — in triplicate, in three colors, with carbon paper inserted — come in 5" x 15" strips with five sets of triplo-cards per strip. They are designed to reduce at least seven-fold the labor involved in establishing and maintaining voter registration card files for union members and their families.

The three sets of cards are used to form (1) an A to Z file; (2) a precinct file; and (3) a working file. Suggestions for setting up and utilizing the card files have been detailed in the California Labor COPE workshop handbook distributed to local COPEs.

The triplo-cards cost $8.75 per thousand sets. This means that three 3" x 5" file cards and two 3" x 5" strips of carbon cost 8¾ mills or less than 9/10ths of a cent per set. The bulk printing of these cards by the California Labor COPE has reduced the cost to about one quarter of what they would otherwise cost local COPEs by printing them locally.

NATIONAL COPE COORDINATION

While working closely with local COPE organizations within California, the state political arm of the AFL-CIO has endeavored at all times to coordinate its activities with the political action programs of the national COPE organization. In this connection, your Secretary, President and Assistant COPE Director have traveled to Washington on a number of occasions during the past two years to participate in COPE Big Cities Conferences and other special meetings to help develop and implement national programs geared to both year-round COPE functions and special campaign efforts. Likewise, the state COPE has extended full cooperation to the national office in connection with COPE area conferences held in California with participation from various western states.

The 1963 COPE area conference for California, Arizona, Hawaii and Nevada was held at the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco, May 28-29, and was attended by well over 200 COPE officers and directors of state, congressional district, county, city central bodies and other full time representatives. The most recent conference held at the El Rancho Hotel in Sacramento on March 6 for California, Hawaii and Nevada drew some 400 delegates. In driving home the importance of this year's elections in a presidential year, national COPE director Al Barkan warned delegates that the fate of organized labor's national goals in social and economic fields will pivot substantially on the outcome of some 84 key Congressional races this year. Fourteen to sixteen of the key seats, he pointed out, are in California. While emphasizing the immediate priority of registration activities, the conference set forth the following registration drive goals: (1) a union registrar in every AFL-CIO local union as called for by the last AFL-CIO convention; (2) door-to-door registration drives in worker precincts as well as at plants to sign up workers and eligible voters in their families; and (3) close coordination and cooperation between local COPEs and women's auxiliaries.

Although run by the national COPE office, the state COPE worked to promote broad participation in the area conferences. Delegates' registration forms were supplied through the state office on request.

The COPE big cities conferences in Washington and other special meetings called by the national COPE have served the useful purpose of airing COPE operational problems at various levels of organization with particular reference to financing matters, continuity of political effort, and the relationship of COPE activities to the political party structures. At all times, in these conferences, the California Labor COPE has steadfastly cautioned against the subordination of labor political activities to the goals of party politics. Based on our experience in California, we have demanded adherence to labor's traditional non-partisan approach to political action.

At the last COPE big cities conference in September, AFL-CIO President George Meany warned delegates in a kick-off address that "the money and manpower of big business and the right wing" would "be pumped into the 1964 elections in unprecedented amounts to elect conservative candidates." Recent formation of conservative political action groups provides conclusive evidence that reactionaries are stepping up their political efforts in hopes of making 1964 a year to elect a Congress and President who will "turn back the clock on progressive legislation," Meany stated. He noted specifically the stepped-up political education efforts of big business groups and corporations and pointed to the American Medical Political Action Committee of the American Medical Association and the Business-Industry Political Action Committee launched last summer by the National Association of Manufacturers. In order to offset the conservative drive by using "our natural advantage in the big cities and their suburbs," Meany added that "we must register record numbers of union members, their families and friends and we must conduct a massive get-out-the-vote campaign."

Pointing out that in 1960 about 60 percent of union members voted in the Presidential contest and that in the 1962 Congressional elections about 50 percent voted, Meany said: "This just about equals the voting performance of the population as a whole. We should do better. The outcome of the Presidential and Congressional elections (in 1964) will hinge on what we are able to accomplish in the major industrial cities and the fast growing suburbs around them."

Statistics substantiating the gap in voting performance between city dwellers and rural and other non-urban residents were supplied by political analyst Louis Harris. Comparing the voting performance of eligible voters in urban areas with those of non-metropolitan areas, Harris reported that the turnout in the urban areas was 18 percent less than in the non-metropolitan areas of New York State; in Missouri, 15 percent; Wisconsin, 9 percent; Illinois and Minnesota, 7 percent; Michigan, 6 percent; and California, 5 percent. The lag in performance "costs hundreds of thousands of votes for liberal candidates" he pointed out.

REGISTRATION AND VOTE CAMPAIGN

As we approach the June 2 primary election and move into the period of intense campaigning for the general election, the emphasis is on the development of sound registration and vote campaigns. Once again, the national AFL-CIO COPE is assisting this effort by providing financial aid on a non-partisan basis to local COPE programs developed in cooperation with the California Labor COPE. All national COPE registration and vote funds are being distributed through the state COPE office on the basis of local budgets that have been developed or are being developed. Budget forms have been supplied local COPE organizations by the national office through the state COPE.

In this connection, it should be noted that the workshops conducted locally last year under cooperative arrangements with the state COPE were designed to plan ahead for the current registration and vote drives through development of permanent year-round programs. When it was known definitely that national assistance funds would be forthcoming, the assistant COPE director made numerous follow-up trips to various areas of the state to encourage early development of registration and vote budgets geared to local needs and the development of continuity in local political action efforts. Subsequent communications were also directed to the local COPEs in regard to the development of feasible budgets.

Up to this point, progress has varied from area to area, and as a whole has been slower than the immediate challenge ahead demands. In devoting our efforts at the state level to stepping up the pace of activity, there are several general problem areas that should be identified as the source of continued obstruction.

In too many local jurisdictions, year-round political action programs are still lacking, or they are only partially in operation. Thus, in a number of areas, registration and vote programs are still being developed on a "crash" basis.

The financing of COPE operations at the local level is far from satisfactory in many areas. Where this is the case, the tendency is to depend on national AFL-CIO financial aid for financing year-round functions that should be carried locally so that national aid may be effectively used for expanded registration and vote campaigns.

The non-affiliation of some organizations with local COPEs, as well as with the California Labor COPE, presents almost insurmountable communication problems in developing an effective registration and vote campaign. The inevitable result is a fragmented approach that thwarts unity and the very base of all successful trade union activity.

We all share in the responsibility to help overcome these problem areas and improve the effectiveness of our political activities.

Fraternally submitted,

Thos. L. Pitts
Secretary-Treasurer

REPORT OF THE AUDITORS

California Labor Council on Political Education
995 Market Street
San Francisco, California

We have examined the statement of cash receipts and disbursements of the California Labor Council on Political Education for the two-year period ended January 31, 1964. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, and accordingly included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

Cash receipts as recorded were found to have been deposited regularly in the bank. Disbursements were evidenced by paid cancelled checks on file which we compared with the cash book entries as to payees and amounts and scrutinized as to signatures and endorsements. Disbursements were either supported by voucher or approved for payment by the Secretary-Treasurer.

The commercial account with Bank of America N.T. & S.A. and savings accounts on deposit were reconciled with statements and passbooks on file for the period under review. The balances on deposit in these accounts at January 31, 1964 were confirmed by correspondence with the depositories.

Surety bonds in effect at January 31, 1964 were as follows:

Thos. L. Pitts, Secretary-Treasurer.....	$10,000.00
David M. Boring, Accountant-Office Manager.....	$10,000.00

The accounts of the Council are maintained on a cash basis; no effect has been given in these statements to income accrued but uncollected at January 31, 1964, or to expenses incurred but unpaid at that date.

In our opinion, the accompanying statement of cash receipts and disbursements presents fairly the recorded cash transactions of the California Labor Council on Political Education for the two-year period ended January 31, 1964, and the cash balances on deposit at January 31, 1964, on a basis consistent with that of preceding periods.
