

Legislative Notes

WATER. Keep your eyes on the main tent and stay clear of the side shows. Governor Brown, in a special water message to the legislature, has outlined a comprehensive statewide water development plan which would involve $658,000,000 in bond money plus commitment of the entire $158,000,000 in state investment fund reserves. No mention was made of anti-monopoly protections for taxpayers in the distribution of benefits. California has no such protections. It is estimated that a handful of large land-holders in the lower end of the great central valley stand to realize taxpayer's subsidies up to $30,000,000 a year if Brown's program goes through without protections like those in federal reclamation law. The so-called north-south issue looks like a side show. It's in the main tent that the water grabs are being contemplated.

FEP LEGISLATION. It's no cinch, despite the fast start given to AB 91 (Rumford) by Governor Brown's support. A campaign is afoot to love it to death by amendments. The reactionary Associated Farmers have already started a letter writing campaign to kill the bill. The California FEP Committee, with which labor has cast its lot on this and other civil rights issues, needs active support at the local level.

SENATE RULE 29.1. It's a new one. Senate bills amended by the Assembly must go to the Legislative Counsel for a brief digest. If any Assembly change is substantive, the bill automatically goes back to Senate committee on motion of the President pro Tempore of the Senate. Liberal measures in past years have reached the Senate floor by amendment of Senate bills in the Assembly. This new rule may be designed to gain tighter control over liberal legislation by referral back to committee. Senate precedent is that no bill is ever withdrawn from committee.

STATE MINIMUM WAGE. Federation-sponsored AB 440 (Burton) provides for a $1.50 per hour minimum. Governor Brown's $1.25 bill doesn't have a number at this time. As expected, the special interest groups are working to get their exemptions written into any measure. Top on the list again are the corporation farmers. Organized labor's position is clear and straight forward. There is no point in enacting a state minimum wage law if the workers who need the protection most are to be excluded. The Federation is pledged by convention action to seek an end to the process of "automatic" legislative exemption of farm workers in every piece of social legislation.

Brown's Tax Program Slaps Consumers for Another $70,000,000

Governor Edmund G. Brown this week handed the legislature a $2,188,377,635 state budget and called for enactment of $202,200,000 in new and increased taxes to make it balance. As part of this tax program, the Governor asked the legislature to slap consumers for another $70 million in sales taxes in the form of a 3-cent per pack levy on cigarettes, a 15% excise on the wholesale price of other tobacco products, and an increase in the beer levy from 2-cents to 7 cents per gallon.

Federation Launches 1959 Scholarship Program

The California Labor Federation this week launched its ninth annual scholarship contest to grant three awards of $500 each to California and Hawaii high school students.

Announcements and application forms containing the essential details of the program were sent to all high schools in the state and Hawaii.

The contest is open to all high school seniors or 12th grade pupils. Winners will be free to choose any four-year college or junior college.

The deadline for return of application blanks is April 13, 1959. Examinations will be held in participating high schools on May 15th.

Judges are Fred Breier, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Economics, University of San Francisco; Leon F. Lee, Ph.D., Director, Institute of Industrial Relations, San Jose State College; and Arthur M. Ross, Ph.D., Director, Institute of Industrial Relations, University of California, Berkeley.

Governor's Industrial Safety Conference will convene at the Biltmore Hotel, Los Angeles, on the morning of February 5th. Governor Edmund G. Brown will deliver the keynote address to the opening session of the two-day conference. Eight major industry group sections will discuss industrial safety problems.

Other taxes asked by Brown include: a 7% instead of 6% income tax ceiling along with narrower brackets, combined with a cut in personal exemptions from $2,000 to $1,500 for individuals and $3,500 to $3,000 for married couples, and a $100 increase in the deduction for dependents, while boosting the standard deduction from 6% to 10% ($60.7 million); imposition of a 2% severance tax on oil and natural gas ($19.3 million); a modest boost in bank and corporation taxes ($33.6 million); a small increase in inheritance and gift taxes ($2 million); advance payments of insurance gross premium tax ($5 million); and higher horse racing fees ($12.4 million).

LABOR OPPOSITION C. J. Haggerty, State AFL-CIO head, immediately issued a statement in Sacramento commending the Governor for his forthright effort to balance the budget, but announcing that labor will fight the new consumer taxes recommended with all the strength it can muster.

Haggerty said "it is shocking that the Governor should slap the consumer for another $70 million in sales taxes." Already two-thirds of state revenues come from sales taxes, which favor the wealth against the consumers in the low and middle income brackets.

Haggerty said the Governor's other tax proposals go in the right direction but fall far short of realizing the full potential of these sources of revenue.

The severance tax on oil, he pointed out, could produce three times the amount recommended by the Governor, and the income tax could easily produce $25 million more than recommended. Haggerty added:

"These two tax sources alone could provide the additional revenue, along with other recommended increases, without slapping the workingman and consumers with another $70 million of abuse.

"Organized labor will be prepared when the Governor's program is taken up to offer an alternative tax program without more taxes on consumption."

- AB 419 Miller (Industrial Relations) Declares state policy that the majority of workers in a given unit shall have the opportunity to select a collective bargaining agency by majority vote, and that a jurisdictional strike is against public policy and unlawful.
- Requires Department of Industrial Relations, upon petition filed by a bona fide labor organization claiming to represent a majority of workers in a unit, to investigate such representation claim, and to conduct hearings and elections as are necessary to determine the appropriateness of the unit involved, and whether the majority of workers in such unit desire to be represented by any petitioning bona fide labor organization. Requires Department to determine in each case the appropriate bargaining unit for representation by a self-determination election, and further requires that the conduct of all elections by the Department shall be by secret ballot. In determining the persons eligibility to participate in an election, the Department is prohibited from allowing strike breakers to vote, and is required to recognize the voting rights of strikers who are involved in the unit. After certifying the bona fide labor organization receiving a majority of the votes cast as exclusive representative of the workers in the designated unit, the Department is prohibited from considering a second representation petition for the conduct of any election in the unit within one year after certification, or until expiration of a collective bargaining agreement, not to exceed two years from the date of execution of such contract. Further, during the period of certification or collective bargaining agreement, all other organizations are prohibited from engaging in striking, picketing, or boycotting for the purpose of obtaining a contract, recognition, or members in the designated unit.
- Repeals present Jurisdiction Strike Act, and enacts new jurisdictional strike procedures. As distinct from representation, a jurisdictional strike is defined as a "concerted refusal to perform work for an employer or any other concerted interference with an employer's operation or business arising out of a controversy between two or more labor organizations as to which has or should have the exclusive right to have its members perform work for an employer." Permits employer, workers, or any bona fide labor organization involved in such a jurisdictional strike to petition the Department to determine whether a jurisdictional strike, in fact, exists between bona fide labor organizations. Petitions must specify name or names of the labor organizations involved and basis of the claims pertaining to such strike. Within 48 hours of receiving petition, Department must issue a notice of hearing to determine whether a jurisdictional strike exists, or dismiss the petition. If notice of hearing to determine whether a jurisdictional strike exists is issued, during the period the Department has jurisdiction over the case, any concerted refusal to perform work for an employer or any other concerted interference with an employer's operation or business, being undertaken by any labor organization or organizations involved, must cease and not be resumed. Three choices are then available to the labor organizations involved. If the Department determines that a jurisdictional strike does exist, by mutual consent of the labor organizations involved, the subject matter of the strike may be submitted (1) for final and binding decision to a tribunal of an organization with which the organizations involved are affiliated, or (2) for final and binding decision to arbitration before a mutually acceptable arbitrator, or (3) for a final and binding decision to the Department of Industrial Relations. Should the labor organizations involved select either of the first two above choices, the Department is divested of its jurisdictional strike powers upon notice to such effect, except power to stop any concerted interference with the employer's operation or business that is undertaken for the purpose of enforcing a jurisdictional claim. In cases where the jurisdictional dispute is submitted to the Department of Industrial Relations for decision, the Department is required, in making its decision, to consider among other factors, jurisdictional and work assignment agreements between labor organizations involved, and any jurisdictional and work assignment standards and rules established by the organizations with which the labor organizations are affiliated, and make a decision that will best promote industrial peace and harmony.

Makes provisions of bill exclusive with respect to establishment and determination of all rights, duties and remedies concerning representation and claims to jurisdiction, and provides that nothing shall be deemed to authorize any action in any court or administrative agency of the state, other than as provided in the bill, while reserving the right of any person or organization to maintain proper court action for violation of a written collective bargaining agreement, or for failure to comply with the final decision or order of the Department, pursuant to the provisions of the bill.

Further, subject to the prohibitions and provisions of the bill, prohibits its interpretation or application to restrain, prevent, or interfere with the rights of labor organizations to negotiate terms or conditions of labor or employment with employers, or engage in concerted activities for collective bargaining, solicitation of membership, advertising wages, hours and working conditions, or any other mutual aid protection.

Gives any member of a bona fide labor organization or any employer the right to seek enforcement of the bill by petition to the Department of Industrial Relations. Gives Department, in turn, authority to hold hearings on enforcement petition, and to issue compliance orders, with power of enforcement by court action, while reserving the right of a person or organization aggrieved by a final order of the Department to seek judicial review within 30 days by petition for Writ of Mandate in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Restricts bill to intrastate commerce by providing that any question of representation or jurisdictional dispute subject to the provisions of the Labor-Management Act, or the federal Railway Labor Act shall not be subject to the provisions of the bill. Contains severability clause should any provision of the measure be declared invalid. January 20.

SB 209 Teale (Labor) Requires the constitution and by-laws of a local labor organization to provide for the following: (1) Minimum of 10 regular membership meetings per calendar year; (2) Furnishing adequate written notice of time and place of membership meetings; (3) Maintenance of membership meeting minutes for inspection of members; (4) Reasonable quorum for conduct of business; (5) Election of officers and representatives by secret ballot; (6) Election of officers and representatives at least every three years; (7) Reasonable opportunity for members to nominate candidates for office; (8) Reasonable opportunity for member in good standing to vote along with specific written notice of date and time of election; and (9) Recall of officers for misconduct along with reasonable procedure for effecting such recall.

Prohibits labor organizations from making any loan, directly or indirectly, to any officer, employee or member of the organization, excepting loans made pursuant to any strike benefit or sick leave program applicable to all members of the labor organization.

Requires labor organizations to file with the Department of Industrial Relations (1) copy of its constitution and by-laws, and if no constitution or by-laws, a full report on the governing rules and practices of the labor organization with respect to the conduct of meetings, election of officers, and the handling of organization funds, (2) copy of any amendment to the constitution, by-laws, or governing rules, and (3) an annual financial report, showing assets and liabilities, income and disbursements, the schedule of salaries, allowances and other disbursements to officers or employees.

Requires any employer, corporation, or employer association which pays money or anything of value to any person, corporation, organization or consultant for the purpose of influencing employees or their representatives in the collective bargaining process, or in their right to organize, or for the purpose of investigating a labor organization, its members or representatives, to file annual financial reports and statements with the Department of Industrial Relations. Likewise requires any person, organization, corporation, consultant, etc. receiving such money or thing of value to file similar annual reports.

Requires union officials and employees, other than clerical employees, receiving wages, salaries or other allowances in excess of $2,500 a year, to file with the Department annual signed reports of (1) Any stocks, bonds, securities and other interests, legal and equitable, and any money or thing of value derived directly or indirectly (a) from an employer with which the union negotiates or is seeking recognition, except payments and benefits received as a regular employee, (b) from a firm which does a substantial part of its business with a company with which the union negotiates or is seeking recognition, or (c) from a firm which does business with the union itself, and (2) any payment received directly or indirectly from any person or employer who acts as a labor relations expert, advisor, or consultant to an employer pursuant to an agreement or arrangement by which the employer or employee is to influence or affect employees in their exercise of the right to join and maintain a liberal organization.

Provides that the above reports and documents required to be filed with the Department shall be confidential, except that they must be made available to members of a filing labor organization upon request, and may be used by the Department for compilation of statistical data, etc., without disclosing the names of the persons or organizations involved.

Makes it a misdemeanor (1) for an employer or any person who acts as a labor relations expert or representative of an employer, to give, or lend any money or anything of value to an officer, representative or employee of a labor organization to influence his official actions or decisions, and (2) for any representative, officer, or employee of a labor organization to accept or solicit money or anything else of value from an employer or his representative with the understanding that it will influence his official action, or decisions as representative, officer or employee of the labor organization or welfare fund.

Provides for the regulation of "trusteeships" whereby a labor organization assumes complete control of the operations of a subordinate labor organization. During the period of trusteeship, makes it unlawful to (1) count the votes of delegates from the subordinate body in any parent body convention or election of officers, unless the delegates were chosen by secret ballot vote among all the members in good standing of the subordinate body, and (2) co-mingle the funds or assets of the subordinate body with the funds or assets of the parent labor organization, or to use funds of the local in trusteeship for any purpose other than (a) the expenses of the trusteeship (b) the expenses of the operation and conduct of the affairs of the local and (c) the normal per capita tax and assessment payable by subordinate bodies not in trusteeship. Requires parent labor organization, in event of trusteeship, to file a report with the Department of Industrial Relations setting forth the reasons for imposing the trusteeship. Permits trusteeship to be imposed only in accordance with the constitution or by-laws of the parent organization for a period not to exceed one year, except upon good cause shown to the Department.

Gives Department of Industrial Relations powers to promulgate rules and regulations for the implementation of the above provisions of the bill, and discretion to require verification of any reports required.

Gives union member, labor organization or employer the right to seek enforcement of the provisions of the bill by written petition to the Department in accordance with rules and regulations prescribed by the Department. Requires the Department upon receipt of such petition, to properly investigate complaint, and, at its discretion, hold a hearing on the matter, with power to subpoena witness and administer oaths, and to issue orders requiring compliance with the bill upon such terms and conditions as the Department, in its discretion, may deem just and proper.

Provides Department with power to take all proceedings necessary for the enforcement of its decisions and orders.

Gives any person aggrieved by a final decision or order of the Department 30 days to seek judicial review by filing a petition for a Writ of Mandate in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Includes severability clause in case any portion of the bill is held invalid.

Finally, provides that any of the bill's provisions subsequently covered by federal law shall become inoperative. January 20. Watch
