My dear Arch:

Night before last Mother and I returned from New York, where she indulged in an orgy of window shopping and I was satisfied with sweet nothings from Sachs and his attorneys. Robert Devlin, of Sacramento, and your friend Mr. Williamson were present, as well as Allen Chickering and two members of the firm of Sullivan & Cromwell. Two days of continuous conference resulted in nothing and I returned to Washington Tuesday night, agreeing to return if and when Goldman-Sachs had anything definite to offer. Thus far they have said many words, but nothing tangible, insisting they must await certain pending negotiations.

I'm writing you today merely that you may have the usual weekly greeting from me. I am so overwhelmed here I cannot write at length.

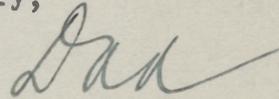

I have watched with care entries at Agua Caliente. Suddenly Sunday I saw "^{Hopes}Bright Eyes". The first thing I looked for Monday morning was the result, and you could hardly have been more disappointed than I was. I am awfully sorry, and until I saw the result, I didn't realize how deeply interested I was. I shall look no more at "entries" or "results".

Mother, tho' alone, for I could only be with her in the evening, enjoyed her brief visit to New York. The buildings since we were last there are marvelous. The hotel people are the same and asked for you. Incidentally, I might add their prices have not decreased.

Mother joins me in love to Martha, with, of course, unlimited amounts to you.

Affectionately,

W

My dear son:

I'm writing this note in the expectation it will reach you on your birthday, and bring you not only the usual felicitations, but the unbounded and undying love of your old dad, a love the stronger for absence and the long distance separating us, a love increasing with your years of strong manhood and mine of old age.

What I wish you this day could occupy pages and indeed more be completed while wishes remained, but it can be summed up too, in a brief word - I wish for you something you would wish for yourself.

with the added wish of a heart filled to overflowing for you.

I'm sending you herein
a small remembrance of the
day. please accept it, and have no hesitation in doing so.

How I long to add a couple of cyphers to it, but the fates have willed otherwise. This does not in the least interfere with me, and if it brings you a little pleasure, let me have
that joy, dear lad.

Have a happy day! There are long years ahead of you, of accomplishment and achievement,
years when the past two will have been forgotten. Good luck
my son. Better still, good courage, and remember as long as we have
each other, we are rich.

With all the love of your old
Dad.

My dear Arch:

I received yesterday yours of February 9th and its enclosures. It was a charming little note that you wrote me with your typewritten letter. I've torn up the check, because I thought it was useless to return it to you. Remember, it's always here for you whenever you wish it, and remember, too, that not only it, but the writer of it, are always at command. I'd have gotten quite a little kick and not a little pleasure if you had kept it. However, we'll let that pass in the hope that it will be called for if desired.

The finest part of your communication to me was that you were staging a good come-back. As you may guess, this is what has been worrying me. Good luck, old man!

We are continuing the bunk proposition here in relation to those suffering from the drought, etc. The thing ought to be closed today.

I do not think we'll have an extra session and I believe we'll be out in March.

Mother joins in love to Martha and yourself.

Dad

My dear Boys:

Just before we hold exercises delivering the statues of Junipero Serra and Thomas Starr King to the Nation on behalf of California, I am sending you this little note. I don't know when we'll get out. I am having the same trouble I've always had when we finish here. Mother does not want to come, and it is with the utmost difficulty I can get her to discuss the matter at all. I will get out when I can. If left to my own devices, I would leave here this week, within two days after the adjournment of Congress. There is not the slightest reason for remaining here, but I am as helpless as a babe with your Mother in regard to the matter. I am assuming that, as usual, she will come 'round, and come out at some extremely inconvenient time. I leave it this way with you, and will, of course, wire you when we get ready to start.

My dear Boys:

I can't tell you how much I regretted last night that the circumstances apparently made it essential I should wire you we could not leave today as we had intended. Notwithstanding the usual difficulties in the way of our departure, we were last evening packed, and I had my transportation and reservations, and everything had been done for our departure this afternoon. I presume that it is a perfectly silly feeling on my part, but I feel something of a contempt for myself in having a journey postponed on account of a little physical ailment, and I am distinctly ashamed in talking about that ailment. Because, however, the fact of my difficulty was telegraphed to you, and in order that you will neither worry nor be concerned in the matter, I am sending you this note. A week ago, an irritation of the ^{umbilicus and} umbilical chord developed with me. The unfortunate thing was something of an enigma to the doctors, and they finally fell back upon their usual generic diagnosis of an infection. This, of course, is perfectly safe as a designation, because it is exactly that, but what else or why are not determined.

The infernal infection, like all infections, grew worse, so that it was with difficulty and with pain that I could move about. I am not incapacitated from movement, and I am not sick, except the sickness that comes from any movement resulting in pain. Yesterday, the blasted thing was worse, when the doctor came to dress it (it is like an ulcerated bullet hole deep within one) and your Mother and he suggested that no chances should be taken on a journey across the continent. I yielded to their suggestions. I think probably they are right, but the whole thing makes me feel like a child with a childish complaint.

We postponed our trip therefore for one week. We started last night at five o'clock to endeavor to exchange our transportation for Wednesday next. We have not yet had definite advices, but I am hoping to have them soon. I have come over to the office for half an hour this morning, but I have to return for the surgical dressing at one o'clock. You can imagine I am not only out of luck, but out of humor.

Pardon me for writing you about a damned miserable little physical ill, but I thought my lads were entitled to know inasmuch as we had wired them that I had been required to postpone our trip.

With my love to all,

Affectionately,

Dad

*P.S.
It looks this morning as if Mother has developed one of her awful colds, so perhaps it is well from every standpoint we are not leaving today. So far as I am concerned, if Mother is OK, and I can move at all, I shall leave here a week from today. K.W.F.*

My dear Arch:

I told you sometime since I wired the Postmaster General in behalf of young Tirey Ford and the desire of his Company for a mail subvention. I received from Postmaster General Brown the following letter:

"Your wire expressing your interest in the Gulf Pacific Company came duly to hand. The Interdepartmental Committee believes that the service rendered by the Gulf Pacific Company warrants a mail subvention. However, the condition of our finances at the present time is giving us great concern. As you are of course aware, the Government is faced with a deficit of approximately a billion dollars. In this situation do you think we should take on any further commitments until the governmental revenues start on the upgrade?"

I hope you are having a delightful vacation.

Sincerely yours,
Signed: Walter F. Brown".

My dear Jack:

I wired you this afternoon that I had lost my diamond earrings and father's gold pen. To the best of my recollection, the last time I had my earrings I put them in the little jewel box on the top of my bureau, but when I went to look for them in the jewel box in the trunk today when I unpacked, I found they were not there, so do not quite understand it. I am sending this letter by air mail, special delivery. Would you be good enough on its receipt immediately to telephone Cannon. I am sending you a little diagram which you can show to Cannon, and see if he will look through the pawn shops. I feel dreadful about losing the earrings, and suppose, as usual, it is my own fault, but that does not make the loss any less. You might let Arch see this, so that he too can get in touch with Cannon. I am sorry to bother you, but I know Arch is doing the races. Please have Cannon investigate very thoroughly, because during my stay at the hotel, they changed their cleaners a couple of times.

We had the usual trip. Both of us arrived here very tired. Of course, you know how we have missed you all. I can think of nothing else but my earrings. Tell them not to leave a stone unturned to find them. I have looked very thoroughly here, and I know they are not here. I can't give you the exact date of the cleaning, but I know the last time I wore the earrings was on Father's birthday.

All my love to you, the boys, and Miss Schow.

Devotedly,

Mother

I have today communicated with the War Department on behalf of Major Shelton and hope that I may be able to accomplish what he desires. Just as soon as the Department advises me what can be done in his case I will notify you.

My dear Jack:

Upon my return here I found your file of correspondence left with you by Mr. L.G. Mathews, relative to the application of Major George M. Shelton, Retired, who is anxious to be detailed to active service, and at once I communicated, in his behalf, with Secretary of War Hurley. Herein is copy of Secretary Hurley's response. I will keep Major Shelton's case in mind, and during the session, when opportunity presents itself, I will talk to Senator Reed, Chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, to see if he can make any helpful suggestion.

My dear Arch:

As I wired you, I asked Commissioner General Hull for a written opinion concerning the eligibility of Mr. John Villiers-Farrow to enter the United States at any future time. Herein is a copy of Mr. Hull's response. It would be my view that from Mr. Farrow's record at the Labor Department, he will experience great difficulty ever again entering the United States. His case was very thoroughly gone into during the summer when Joe Scott was interested in it, and as I wired you, the record there appearing is in part as follows:

"It appears that Mr. Farrow was denied registration by the Bureau last March on the grounds that he had failed to show continuous residence, that he had failed to show good moral character, and that he was subject to deportation. In prosecuting his application for registration it developed that this man attempted to obtain a certificate of registry through fraud, that he had been arrested for "contributing to the delinquency of a minor", and that he had been dishonorably discharged from the United States Coast Guard Service. He was granted up to July 20, 1931, in which to leave the United States voluntarily."

Affectionately,

November 30, 1931.

Honorable Hiram W. Johnson,
United States Senate,
Washington, D. C.

My dear Senator Johnson:

In reply to your letter of the 24th instant, there is little, if anything, of value that I can add to the detailed information given you in my letter of September 18, 1931, relative to the case of John Villiers Farrow.

In view of the exclusion of Mr. Farrow during August, 1931, he will not be eligible to apply again for admission within one year from the date of his exclusion, unless granted permission to do so as the result of an application addressed by him to the Secretary of Labor, and submitted to the United States Immigrant Inspector in Charge at Vancouver, British Columbia, the place of his exclusion. Following the expiration of one year, without special permission, Mr. Farrow may make application for admission. His entry at any time in the future, however, cannot be authorized unless he can present a suitable document issued by a consul of the United States in foreign territory and successfully undergo examination at a designated port of entry with respect to the physical, mental and moral requirements of the immigration laws.

Attention is invited to the inclosed list of inadmissible classes of aliens.

Very truly yours,

HARRY E. HULL,
Commissioner General.

Incl. No. 28706.

U. S. Department of Labor
BUREAU OF IMMIGRATION

CLASSES OF ALIENS EXCLUDED FROM ADMISSION TO THE UNITED STATES
AND APPLICABILITY OF LAW

APPLICABILITY OF LAW UPON OCCASION OF EACH ENTRY

An alien is subject to the requirements of the immigration laws upon each entry from a foreign country, and no assurance of admission or readmission can be given in advance.

American Indians born in Canada are permitted to enter the United States without inspection under the Immigration Laws. This right, however, does not extend to persons whose membership in Indian tribes or families is created by adoption.

MANDATORILY EXCLUDED CLASSES (No appeal lies)

1. Idiots; imbecilities; feeble-minded or mentally defective persons; epileptics; insane persons; persons who have had one or more attacks of insanity; persons of constitutional psychopathic inferiority; chronic alcoholics; persons afflicted with tuberculosis in any form or with a loathsome or dangerous contagious disease.

EXCLUDED CLASSES (Appeal lies)

2. Persons physically defective, such defect being of a nature which may affect ability to earn a living; paupers; professional beggars; vagrants; persons likely to become a public charge; children under 16 years of age unaccompanied by or not destined to either parent; persons seeking admission (without permission to reapply) within one year from date of previous exclusion, and aliens generally, with certain exceptions, who have been previously arrested and deported; persons whose ticket or passage is paid for with the money of another or who are assisted by others to come, unless it is affirmatively shown that such persons do not belong to any other excluded class; persons whose ticket or passage is paid for by any corporation, association, society, municipality, or foreign government; stowaways; with certain exceptions, persons who are natives of a certain geographically defined territory in Asia; aliens ineligible to citizenship; holders of limited passports; accompanying aliens whose services are required by an excluded alien by reason of the latter's mental or physical condition; persons who have arrived in foreign contiguous territory within two years of date of application for admission who were brought to said territory by steamship lines not signatory to an agreement with the United States Government to abide by all the laws, rules and regulations applicable to steamship lines entering ports of the United States; aliens coming in consequence of offers or promises of employment, unless specially excepted by law or regulations; criminals;

polygamists and persons who believe in the practice of polygamy; anarchists and persons who believe in or advocate anarchy and the violent overthrow of the government of the United States or forms of government, assassination of government officials, etc.; members of the sexually immoral classes. With the following exceptions, persons over 16 years of age unable to read the English language or some other language or dialect:

- (a) Persons physically incapable of reading.
- (b) Any admissible alien or alien heretofore or hereafter legally admitted or any citizen of the United States may bring in or send for his father or grandfather over 55 years of age, his wife, mother, grandmother, or his unmarried or widowed daughter, who, if otherwise admissible, may be admitted whether such relative can read or not.
- (c) Persons seeking admission to the United States to avoid religious persecution in the country of their last permanent residence.
- (d) Aliens who have been lawfully admitted to, and who have resided in, the United States continuously for five years, and who return within six months from the date of departure.
- (e) Persons in transit through the United States.
- (f) Exhibitors and employees of fairs and expositions authorized by Congress.

Immigrants without American consular immigration visas, except aliens, who are otherwise admissible, as follows:

- (a) Holders of permits to reenter the United States.
- (b) Residents returning within six months from Canada, Mexico, Bermuda, Cuba, and certain other islands and places adjacent to such countries.
- (c) Child born subsequent to issuance of immigration visa to accompanying parent.
- (d) Children born during the temporary visit abroad of alien parents holding nonquota, returning-resident immigration visas or permits to reenter.

NOTE:—Any alien regardless of the cause of exclusion, except when exclusion arises under the so-called Quota Act, who returns after a temporary absence to an unrelinquished United States domicile of seven consecutive years may be admitted in the discretion of the Secretary of Labor and under such conditions as he may prescribe.

Your friend, Mr. Bruce, who desired to talk about the Philippines called upon me with your note, and I was very glad to give such time as he desired. My dear Arch:

I have just this afternoon received your letter and read it with very grave concern. I can't tell you how sorry Mother and I are that you have been ill, and the mystery of the illness adds to the worry. It is a very strange thing that I was going to wire you today, because we had not heard from you, and then came your letter. I am sending this little note airmail in the hope that it finds you all right, and to ask upon its receipt that you send us a wire of a few words saying you are well.

When you see Dick Tobin, thank him for me for his kindness. I read the article and was quite surprised at finding such an article in a Catholic paper. Generally speaking, they have been fairly just to me. This particular paper, however, assumes to be a part of the intelligensia, and I assume that it pretends a superiority to just common people.

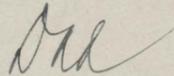

I can't tell you how I am up to my ears in all sorts of things here. I hope to get a breathing spell during the holidays.

Major Archibald M. Johnson - 2

Mother wanted me to impress upon you and Jack, and I shall write Jack tomorrow, if I get time, that there are to be no Christmas presents this year, and this means really none at all.

I read with interest what you said about the action you commenced against the distinguished lady client. I am assuming that ^{she is} she is simply trying to get an extension of time by her tactics, and that ~~whens~~ she has succeeded in delaying you long enough, the matter will be adjusted. I have not intended this as anything more than just an acknowledgment of your letter today, and to tell you how sorry we were to hear of your illness, and how we are praying for your immediate recovery. Take care of yourself, dear boy!

My dear Boys:

I have a fatal facility for getting into a lone fight,—that is, a contest where I feel entirely right, and where most of my fellows feel exactly as I do, but in which none of them has the guts to go the route. That is the sort of thing I am in now with the moratorium. I have had a terrible time the past two days trying to have an examination of Morgan and Company, and the National City Bank under my resolution for an investigation of foreign loans. When I conceived the notion of the investigation, it seemed absolutely hopeless under the personnel of the Senate, but by being extremely careful, and gradually overcoming different obstacles, and putting the investigation in the Finance Committee, whose members are the puppets of big financiers, I made it impossible for them to stand on the floor, and oppose it. Now, that the investigation is on, of course, they do everything in their power to prevent it being effective, and not being a member of the committee, I have to sit there and butt in occasionally. Finally, this morning, I grew sick of their methods, and practically took charge, much to their disgust. The remarkable thing about the investigation is that all of the papers, like the Hearst papers, who were wildly in favor of it in the beginning, are frightened to death of it now, so frightened ^{were the Hearst papers} that they sent Forbes, their financial man here to write the story of it. The fact of the matter is, all of ~~the~~ whispering here is of worst ^e times to come, if possible, bank failures, etc. You can imagine with the loneliness of the fight, how tremendously engaged I have been, and the worst part of the whole thing is that I am beginning to have my old trouble about sleeping. However, maybe a little vacation at Christmas will do everything necessary.

At Mother's request, I repeat of course, our Christmas is to be without gifts. I am going to arrange a time to talk to you either Christmas eve or Christmas night. I presume you will all be together one of those nights as usual, and that I can make the necessary arrangements. You'll probably have to wire me on receipt of this letter which night you will be together, and where, so that I can arrange things here, ten o'clock by our time, and seven o'clock by yours, for Mother and me to talk to all of you.

Mother is feeling better, I think, and I am very glad, because of the stress under which we are at present.

I do hope both of you are well, and that your families are well. Take care of yourselves, please. With all my love, in which Mother joins, Affectionately, Dad

My dear Jack:

The finest and sweetest thing that we received this Christmas was your message in verse. Thank the boys and Miss Schow for both Mother and me, and you, dear lad, know with what tender emotions we read your very clever skit. We thought it so wonderful that we read it over @loud again last night. Indeed, I can not understand why, for it was postmarked at San Francisco, December 21, 6:30 p.m., airmail, it did not arrive until yesterday, December 26. It was just as well, because it gave us really two days of Christmas with you. The undoubted talent, which you have in the direction in which you exercised it in this beautiful little greeting, you ought to develop. I think there would be no limitations to what you might accomplish. Try it, lad. But I have added this addenda to the letter I am sending both of you today, that you may know your effort gave your Mother and Father an indescribable pleasure. Thank you and the boys, and Miss Schow again.

Affectionately,

Dad
