a two-day seminar
in interpersonal relations within the educational institution

Sponsored by
Carolina Union
&
Campus Y

Monday, April 3

Opening Session — 3:00, Rm 217, Carolina Union

Topics on Race Relations: Cross-Cultural Communication

Facilitator: Dr. Dennis Tafoya, UNC Dept. of Speech, and a panel of undergraduates representing the Black Student Movement, the Carolina Indian Circle, and Housing.

Dr. Tafoya has recently completed a study of the undergraduate living situation on campus, particularly the attitudes of individual students towards persons of another race. Focus: How To Live Together — Factors involved in campus life, from a student perspective

Session — 4:00, Music Gallery, Carolina Union

Toward a Model for Student Activities

Facilitators: Greer Wilson, Director of Student Activities, Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va.

Archie Copeland, Associate Director of the Carolina Union, UNC

Wilson, organizer of students at the predominantly Black Hampton Institute, carries the concept of living together one step further with a model for racial interaction.

Reception — 4:00, Lounge of the Great Hall, Carolina Union

Reception for the Women Faculty of UNC — Discussion: Affirmative Action and the Status of Women at UNC

Reception co-sponsored by the Women's Forum, the Order of the Valkyries, and the Association for Women Students. Purpose is to initially provide a social context within which women faculty members may gather and also discuss the University's attitude toward Affirmative Action and women and the specific problems of faculty women.

Session — 8:00, Faculty Lounge, Morehead Planetarium

Douglass Hunt: The University's Approach to Affirmative Action

Douglass Hunt, UNC's Affirmative Action Officer, discusses the problems and factors involved in implementing an Affirmative Action program, and what AA means to employment practices to all races from an administrative viewpoint. Hunt will be questioned by a panel including: Dr. James Leutze, UNC History Dept., Dr. Lee Greene, UNC English Dept., Dr. Joan Scott, UNC History Dept., and Charlie Allen, member of the Campus Y Human Relations Committee.

Tuesday, April 4

Session — 4:00, 212 Saunders

Desegregation: HEW and UNC

In lieu of an apparently inevitable court battle between the University and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare over proposed desegregation guidelines, a panel including UNC's Administrative Legal Counsel and representatives from HEW outlines the problem, from how UNC has thus far measured up to desegregation proposals to the problems and purpose of governmental guidelines.

Session — 4:00, Deep Jonah, in the basement of the Carolina Union

Confronting Racism: An Exploration of Interpersonal Relationships

Facilitators: Greer Wilson, Director of Student Activities, Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va.

Archie Copeland, Associate Director of the Carolina Union

A sensitivity workshop for those who are in positions of organizational interaction with different sorts of people, designed to help the participant get in touch with his/her own feelings of prejudice on whatever level and to learn to deal with oneself or others in periods of racial tension or isolation.

Address — 8:00, Gerrard Hall

Institutional and Social Implications of Bakke

Speaker: Robert Allen, Editor of the Black Scholar. Allen is the author of one of the most well-respected critiques of the Bakke case and its arguments, as well as a keen projector for the future. His magazine, The Black Scholar, is respected as perhaps the country's foremost forum for examination of the affairs of the Black community.
