COPYRIGHT AND RESTRICTIONS

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted materials. The various state privacy acts govern the use of materials that document private individuals, groups, and corporations.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a reproduction if the document does not infringe the privacy rights of an individual, group, or corporation. These specified conditions of authorized use include:

- non-commercial and non-profit study, scholarship, or research, or teaching
- criticism, commentary, or news reporting
- as a NPS preservation or security copy
- as a research copy for deposit in another institution

If a user later uses a copy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," the user may be personally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement. This institution's permission to obtain a photographic, xerographic, digital, or other copy of a document doesn't indicate permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, sell, distribute, or prepare derivative works from this document without first obtaining permission from the copyright holder and from any private individual, group, or corporation shown or otherwise recorded.

Permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, prepare derivative works from, sell, or otherwise distribute the item must be obtained by the user separately in writing from the holder of the original copyright(or if the creator is dead from his/her heirs) as well as from any individual(s), groups, or corporations whose name, image, recorded words, or private information (e.g., employment information) may be reproduced in the source material. The holder of the original copyright isn't necessarily the National Park Service. The National Park Service is not legally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement when materials are wrongfully used after being provided to researchers for "fair use."

This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a copying order if fulfillment of the order is judged in violation of copyright or federal or state privacy or publicity law.

HISTORY

The Yosemite Museum Program's inception can be credited to Ansel Hall (1894-1962), who first came to Yosemite in 1919. One year later, Hall was appointed information ranger and his first project was to expand exhibit space from the chief ranger's office into the vacated studio of artist Christian Jorgensen (1860-1935) near Sentinel Bridge.

By 1922, discussions regarding the need for dedicated "fire proof" museum space intensified due to several circumstances -- growing numbers of park visitors, the donation of a valuable Indian basket collection, and the creation of a new Park Naturalist Department lead by Hall. Architect Herbert Maier (1893-1969) provided a building design, and The Yosemite Museum Association (later known as the Yosemite Natural History Association) was created to manage individual donations for the project.

Hall gained support for his enterprise from Hermon C. Bumpus (1862-1943), the first president of the American Association of Museums. The association's Committee on Museums in National Parks (later, the Committee on Outdoor Education) viewed Hall's project as an important test case for a public education program. Bumpus recommended the project to the Laura Spellman Rockefeller Memorial Fund in New York, and Yosemite was awarded a $50,000 grant in 1923.

The Museum Building site was chosen by Thomas Vint (1894-1967) of the National Park Service Landscape Design Office, which was located in Yosemite until it moved to Los Angeles 1923. Vint's vision was to create an administrative center that was in balance with the landscape and also architecturally harmonious. Maier's museum design fit well with Los Angeles architect Myron Hunt's (1908-1952) vision for the Administration Building and Post Office -- prototypes for what was to be known as National Park Service Rustic Style architecture.

The Museum Building's exterior construction was completed in 1924, however another year was needed for exhibits to be researched, planned, and prepared. Displays, furniture, and library books also needed to be moved from the Jorgensen studio. By 1925, the two story building was complete and contained a library, classroom, offices, caretaker quarters, and storage. It was the first building constructed as a museum in the park service system.

The Museum officially opened to the public on May 29, 1926, and on October 29, 1926, the American Association of Museums transferred ownership of the building to the National Park Service. Museum displays presented the natural and cultural history of Yosemite in a chronology beginning with the valley's geological formation. Exhibits continued into exterior space at the rear of the building with a coach and wildflower garden. The stairway landing to the second floor housed an insect display and led to a "Tree Room," "Flower Room," lecture room, darkroom, offices, and caretaker quarters. By 1927, a reconstructed Indian dwelling and acorn granary had been added to the wildflower garden area.

Yosemite's library, originally known as the Yosemite Museum Nature Library, was the first formal library created in the national park system. Originally located in the west wing of the Museum's first floor, the collection included research and reference materials of natural and cultural history, with an objective to serve the needs of naturalists and researchers, as well as students of the Yosemite School of Field Natural History. The library collection developed from donations by visitors, organizations, institutions, and from funds raised and distributed through the Yosemite Natural History Association (later known as the Yosemite Association).

Throughout the following decades there were many changes to the Museum Building. The Research Library operated with assistance from a series of students during the summer, and eventually moved into the naturalist's study room on the second floor. Museum display areas were converted into space for offices and storage when a new Visitor Center opened in 1967. Museum exhibits were donated to Lewis & Clark College in Portland, Oregon, the building was renamed the Valley District Building, and the main entrance area was blocked and converted into the District Court Room.

In the 1970s, some of the building's original function for research, education, and interpretation began to be restored. Plans for an Indian Cultural Exhibit began in 1975. Curators selected objects from storage, designed displays, and developed interpretive programs. The new exhibit opened to the public in 1976. Ten years later, a gallery for temporary exhibits was created from office space on the first floor, and the building's main front entry leading from the park's administrative center was recreated.

The first Yosemite Records Center was created by 1975 and located in the Valley District (Museum) Building attic where it was managed by the research librarian. In 1989, the park appointed a historian with responsibilities for the care of growing archival collections. By 1997, a prefabricated, climate-controlled building was installed within covered storage in El Portal, 17 miles from the museum and library collections. Although most archival material was moved to this location, rare books and some collections of historic photographs remained in the Research Library and Museum.

The park's first archivist was hired in 2005. Offices and storage facilities for the Yosemite Archives are currently located in EL Portal. The Archives contain over three million items documenting the history of the park, park partners, and concessionaires, including administrative records, photographs, motion picture film, maps, plans, and oral histories. The Archives also contain a collection of approximately 90,000 slides created between 1938 and 1999 for education and interpretation.

The Research Library and its two branch libraries in Wawona and Tuolumne Meadows circulate over 2,000 items per year. Reference assistance is also provided to hundreds of researchers each month. The collection consists of approximately 12,000 volumes on cultural and natural history, as well as operational activities of the park, including 5,000 circulating books and 2000 rare books. The Research Library also currently maintains 20,000 black and white cataloged photographs dating from the late 1800s to the present, and houses vertical files of thousands of reports, offprints, photocopies, and copy prints.

As its mission statement summarizes, the Yosemite Museum Program's current role is to preserve records, natural specimens, and human cultural artifacts that help document and define Yosemite National Park, facilitate public interpretation and enjoyment, and aid research for society's benefit. The program currently meets this mission through the management of museum, library, and archive collections, and by participation in special initiatives and projects. Over 1.7 million museum objects encompass a broad range of subject areas relevant to the park, including the fine arts, history, transportation, archeology, ethnography, biology, geology, and paleontology. The Museum supports interpretive themes through the Indian Cultural Exhibit, Visitor Center, Museum Gallery, Wilderness Center, El Portal Transportation Exhibit, Mariposa Grove Museum, and the Thomas Hill Studio in Wawona. The program also facilitates special projects in the arts, including the Artists-in-Residence Program and the Yosemite Renaissance.

The Museum Program operates as a branch of the Interpretation and Education Division. The Branch Chief or Chief Curator directs the program and currently manages activities of the museum curator, registrar, museum technician, research librarian, archivist, and archive technician. In the past, Museum Program staff also included a historian and a curator of ethnography. Until 1985, Museum Program activities were directed by the Chief Naturalist (later known as Chief Interpreter) including Ansel Hall (serving from 1922 to 1923), Carl P. Russell (serving from 1923 to 1929), C. A. Harwell (serving from 1929 to 1940), C. Frank Brockman (serving from 1941 to 1946), Donald Edward McHenry (serving from 1947 to 1956), Douglass H. Hubbard (serving from 1956 to 1966), William Jones (serving from 1969 to 1972), David Karraker (serving from 1972 to 1974), and Leonard W. McKenzie (serving from 1975 to 1984).

SCOPE AND CONTENT

Yosemite Museum Program Records
1900-2011 (bulk dates: 1971-2005)

CATALOG NUMBER YOSE 237704

VOLUME 52 LF (98 manuscript boxes, 5 boxes of audio cassettes, 2 boxes of backup CDs, 2 oversize boxes, 2197 photographic prints, 109 slides, 15 negatives, 72 maps, plans and drawings)

DESCRIPTION This body of records represents the activities of the Museum Program's leadership and support staff, operating as a branch of the Interpretation and Education Division. Although a few documents date to the park's earliest years, most records range in date from approximately 1971 to 2005, while the program was largely under the leadership of Jack Gyer and later, Chief Curator Dave Forgang.

Records reflect the planning, operations, and special projects of the program chief, curator, registrar, archivist, librarian, historian, ethnographer, and museum technician. Of note is the presence of records documenting park activities before the creation of other divisions addressing issues regarding historic preservation, cultural resource studies, and Native American consultation.

Since the museum program was directed by the chief park naturalist until the 1980s, relevant documents may also be found in the correspondence and subject files of the Interpretation and Education Division. Documentation of activities involving exhibits created by Chief Park Naturalist Douglass Hubbard including the Visitor Center, El Portal Transportation Exhibit, and the Pioneer Yosemite History Center are also included with Interpretation and Education Division Records.

Document types include correspondence, annual reports, project reports, agreements, budgets, completed historic resources forms, publications, audio files, and photographic prints, slides, and negatives. Oversized maps, plans, drawings, and charts are also included.

ORGANIZATION

Records are divided into seven series: Series I, Office of the Program Chief; Series II, Operations, Curation, and Collection Management; Series III, Exhibits; Series IV, Records of the Historian; Series V, Historic Preservation; Series VI, Native American Consultation and NAGPRA; and Series VII, Projects.

SERIES IV: RECORDS OF THE HISTORIAN, 1959-2011 (bulk dates: 1981-2004) 5 LF

This series contains records reflecting the activities of James B. Snyder who served as park historian from 1989 until his retirement in 2005. Records include correspondence, reports, manuscript drafts, and extensive, detailed commentaries on the research of staff as well as other scholars.

Records also reflect Snyder's role in other park activities including the documentation of park rock falls, and consequently his involvement in the Terbush v. United States case concerning the death of a climber near Glacier Point. Records also reference Snyder's management of the Wilderness Historic Resource Survey, although the project's documentation is found in Series VI, Subseries B.

The series is divided into two subseries, the first containing chronological files, and the second containing subject files.

Subseries A: Chronological Files, 1988-2004 4.5 LF

These records contain correspondence, reports, annotated drafts, commentaries, manuscripts, sketch maps, and legal briefs. Given the number of reports, edited manuscripts, and lengthy commentaries contained within these files, summary notes have been added to highlight items of potential significance.

SERIES V: HISTORIC PRESERVATION, 1903-2004 (bulk dates: 1971-2003) 13.5 LF

The series represents cultural resource activities undertaken by the Museum Program before the creation of the Cultural Resource Management Branch of the Resource Management Division. The series documents the park's implementation of the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA), legislation passed in 1966 to preserve historic and pre-contact archaeological sites. Records also document activities to comply with the cultural resource components of the 1969 National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA). Records regarding the park's compliance with NHPA section 106 requirements for consultation with Native American communities and the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (NAGPRA) are found in Series VI. Cultural resource documentation may also be found in records of the Interpretation and Education Division (YOSE 218599).

The series includes two subseries. The first subseries contains records with general documentation regarding policy and wide-ranging project plans. A second subseries contains records on activities related to specific historic buildings and sites.

Of particular note are agreements with the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation (Box 1 Folders 1-8), field inventory reports for the List of Classified Structures (Box 3 and 4 Folders 35-38), and completed National Register nomination forms from 1977 and 1978 (Boxes 5 and 6 Folders 57-66).

Records are arranged alphabetically by folder title. Access to some items is restricted due to sensitivity.

Subseries B: Subject Files, 1900-2004 (bulk dates: 1971-2003) 8.5 LF

This subseries contains records documenting planning and actions taken regarding specific historic buildings or sites. Documents include correspondence, reports, manuscripts, architectural plans, maps, drawings, photographs and negatives.

Three folders contain items attributed to historian and writer Shirley Sargent (1927-2004): a photographic print of the Hennes Ridge Lookout (Box 6, Folder 79), a report on the Wawona Basin acquisition (Box 9, Folder 131), and a photographic print of Moore Cottage (Box 12, Folder 165).

Records are arranged alphabetically by folder title. Access to some items is restricted due to sensitivity.

SERIES VI: NATIVE AMERICAN CONSULTATION AND NAGPRA, 1927-2004 (bulk dates: 1993-2003) 2.5 LF

The records in this series document the activities of Museum Program staff while consulting with members of the Native American community in compliance with Section 106 of the Historic Preservation Act and the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (NAGPRA).

Documents include agreements, guidelines, procedures, correspondence, meeting notes, and reports. Of particular note is a report on the ethnogeography of Yosemite National Park by Brian Bibby and a map of Native American claims to areas in the vicinity of Yosemite National Park. Also of interest are Wauhoga site plans and elevations as well as roundhouse construction details.

The arrangement of records begins with documentation on general consultation issues, followed by records regarding NAGPRA and specific projects. Most documents in this series are sensitive and require special permission for access.

SERIES VII: PROJECTS, 1986-2006 (bulk dates: 1989-1997) 12.5 LF

This series includes records documenting special projects managed by Museum Program staff.

The series contains two subseries; the first includes records from an ethnographic oral history project, while the second contains files documenting a historic resources survey of wilderness areas.

Subseries A: Ethnographic Oral History Project, 1995-2006 (bulk dates: 1995-1997) 4 LF

This subseries contains records of oral history interviews of Yosemite area Native American community members undertaken by ethnographer Brian Bibby. Records include audio cassettes, transcripts, correspondence, and a few color photographic prints of individuals.

The subseries is arranged with correspondence appearing first, followed by transcripts, then audio cassettes. Transcripts are arranged by the interviewee's last name. Audio cassettes came to the archive labeled with the interviewee's name, and multiple cassettes of the same interviewee were numbered. Cassettes are arranged by the interviewee's last name then by number. Audio cassette recordings have been copied from the analog tapes as digital WAVE files and stored on CDs as well as the archives' server for preservation.

Subseries B: Wilderness Historic Resources Survey Project, 1986-2001 (bulk dates: 1989-1995) 8.5 LF

Records in this subseries document a project managed by James B. Snyder to survey 1,200 square miles of wilderness in Yosemite National Park from 1988 to 1995. The subseries includes folders for each blaze, building, structure (e.g., fence), feature (e.g., rock formation), or trail encountered. Each folder contains a form describing a specific site location and its characteristics. In some instances extensive historic details are also included. Many forms, particularly those for blazes, include sketches. Most folders for blazes, buildings, structures, and features include 4 x 5 inch black and white photographic prints. Documentation for most trails includes annotated segments of photocopied topographic maps rather than photographs. All photographs are numbered on the verso and are sometimes referenced on forms in multiple categories.

Documents of particular interest describe the presence of the cavalry, sheepherders, homesteaders, or historic figures, and summary notes appear where this is the case.

Files in this subseries came to the archive arranged by category and category number, and this arrangement was maintained. The arrangement of the subseries begins with general documentation about the project and project reports in Box 1. The subseries then proceeds by category beginning with blazes, then followed by buildings, features, structures, and trails. Folders are arranged by category number, although gaps in the sequence of numbers sometimes exist. Summary notes indicate where this is the case.

All folders are sensitive and require special permission for review with the exception of reports and general documentation in Box 1 at the beginning of the subseries.
