Smith, whose recording of the stage robbery by a lone bandit at the summit of the Santa Cruz mountains in 1871, we related on Friday, was the wife of the late Capt. J. M. Smith. Their daughter, Mrs. J. C. Falkenberg, lives in Del Rey Woods with her son, Stanley Falkenberg and his family. Another son, Ray Falkenberg, also lives in Monterey. Capt. John Morgan Smith was born in 1825 in Vermont. He and his wife came to California during the gold rush by boat and across the Isthmus of Panama. Capt. Smith went into partnership, and operated a river boat between Sacramento and San Francisco. In later years he was a wharfinger for the Cowell Lime and Cement Company at Santa Cruz. In these days they hauled the lime rock to the wharf with oxen. This wharf has since disappeared. Mrs. Smith was a passenger on the stage from San Jose to Santa Cruz when the lone, armed "road agent," as a robber was called in those days, held up the stage near Patchen. Patchen is now marked as a state historical landmark on the road between San Jose and Santa Cruz, near the summit. The Marker is adjacent to the highway.

Moore, from London, landing in New York on the 25th day of June, 1846. I went to Norfolk, va., where I worked one and a half years. From there I worked at the following places: One month in Wilmington, N.C.; one month in Columbia, Pa.; three months in Danville, Pa.; and the rest of the time up to Feb. 22, 1850, in Philadelphia for John Hague, 308 Market street. On Feb. 27, 1850, I embarked for California on the ship "Zenobia". We discharged the pilot at the breakwater near Cape May on March 1 at 3:30 p.m. and battled around Cape Horn, passed one day along the Falkland Islands and after being 100 days out arrived in the harbor of Valparaiso on June 11. We stopped four days at that place, weighing anchor June 15, having fine sailing on the Pacific we arrived in San Francisco harbor on the 13th day of August at 8 p.m., having been 58 days from Valparaiso. [Continued on A-5, Card #459.02]

A-5	459.02	People - Stevens through Swasey	[Otto Stoesser - Continued from A-5, Card #459.01] On August 17 I went to work for M. L. Winn on Jackson street making candy. On September 17 we were burned out but in a few days started business again making his Golden Syrup, commonly called Winn's Golden Syrup. In the fore part of October the steamer Panama (I believe) brought us the news that the state was admitted to the union. The steamer arrived about 3 p.m. and in a very short time the people of San Francisco and myself all had a grand jubilee and in the evening paraded the streets to the plaza at 8 p.m. Speeches were made. Colonel Baker made a grand speech. Every one was happy and all was free and easy, I taking a small hand in it myself. I soon went to the southern mines to look for my pile at Burns Diggings, near Agua Frio; was there a few weeks but met with no success in mining (because I was too green) and returned to San Francisco by way of Stockton, arriving on Christmas day, 1850, without my pile, nearly flat broke, having only $4.85 left. A-5	459.03	People - Stevens through Swasey	[Otto Stoesser - Continued from A-5, Card #459.02] I determined to get a job immediately so I shipped as cabin master (called in those days a flunky) on the steamer "Columbus" on Christmas day, 1850, with Capt. John McGowen, an ex-officer of the U.S. navy, bound for Panama. We left San Francisco on January 1, 1851. There were from 48 to 54 cabin passengers and about 150 in the steerage, mostly rough old miners, some of whom had made their pile while many others were broke and glad to return home. After a pleasant sail of nine days we arrived at Acapulco. On the following day we left for Panama. We encountered a severe storm which threw us out of our course. After 36 hours of stormy weather we had to drop into Realgo, Mexico, for coal. We reached Panama on January 21 after a voyage of 21 days. Having remained at Lagoba five weeks undergoing repairs we returned to Panama and again left that place on March 1 homeward bound. [Continued on A-5, Card #459.04]
A-5	459.04	People - Stevens through Swasey	[Otto Stoesser - Continued from A-5, Card #459.03] This trip we had a long list of passengers and were again favored with a good voyage. Twenty days after our departure from Panama the "Columbus" steamed into San Francisco harbor and we were once more at home on the 24th of March. The crew was paid off and nearly all hands, including myself, left the ship. As they were all bound for the northern mines this time I thought perhaps my pile would be found there. We mined at Long's Bar on Feather River several weeks and worked hard but made only board and poor board at that. About this time the Rich Bar mines excitement started and we packed up and went there but this was also a wild goose chase as everything was already taken there. Becoming now thoroughly discouraged we sold our traps and started for San Francisco. At the eating places on the way we had to pay $1 for a meal of pork, beans, cut[sic] of coffee and slice of bread. Arriving at Marysville, from there proceeded to Sacramento and thence directly to San Francisco. [Continued on A-5, Card #459.05]

Before night we found work on the steamer "New Orleans" and sailed immediately for Panama. Not liking steamboating I wanted to get a job in town. I was not particular as to the kind of job. Anything was acceptable for I was nearly broke. Expecting a letter from home I went to the post office, getting nothing but disappointment. I walked out DuPont street and had not proceeded far before I saw a sign in a restaurant window, "Wanted, a dishwasher". Going into the place I secured the job, washed dishes like a good fellow for ten days when having sufficient money to pay my board I told Mr. Wilson, the proprietor, to get another man. On the same day I quit the dishwashing business I became second pastry baker for Perry Bros. on Kearny[sic] atreet. I had been with them 24 days when on Sunday, June 22, their established burned. [Continued on A-5, Card #459.06]

In a few days I again went to work baking pastry for Meigs &amp; Dunion on Merchant street. I stayed with them 10 months when I went to work for M. L. Winn again at "Winn's Fountain Head" on Long Wharf. Here I also worked 10 months, making all his candy in his candy factory, which was at that time (1852-53) the largest on the coast. On March 2, 1853, I quit work with Winn and was coaxed by a Dr. Van den Bergh to come to Santa Cruz county to set up business in merchandising. We bought a stock of goods and came to Santa Cruz on March 10 in the steamer "Major Tompkins", Capt. Hunt. I landed on the beach where the bath houses now stand and marched with the doctor up town to his place near the Santa Cruz House. I stayed with him there one month. We then packed up all the goods and loaded three wagons belonging to the old man Imus and son, and started to Watsonville. [Continued on A-5, Card #459.07]

We dissolved by mutual consent and I bought his interest, resumed business alone and have been merchandising on, I may say, the same spot ever since. - O -

A-5	533.01	People - Taylor	NELSON TAYLOR I was born of good New England stock in Trumansburg, Tompkins County, New York on April 11, 1811, the second of a family of 12 children. I was sent to school before I can remember and continued to go, summer and winter, until I was 14 years old when I was set to learning the trade in my father's tannery, attending school during the winter only until I was well versed in the Three Rs and the Two Gs. When I reached the age of 21 I started out in the world to seek my fortune with six dollars in my pocket. I worked at my trade in the towns of Geneva and Phelps and then went to Rochester. The cholera broke out in the city about that time and I returned home. During the winter of 1832-33 I taught a county school at $16 a month and boarded round. In the spring of 1833 I started out again. I worked at my trade in Auburn for a few months, then went to New York; not finding employment there I went to Philadelphia where I remained until 1834; then went to Ohio, taught school in Norwalk, Huron county... In 1836 I bought an interest in a book store in Tecumseh, also kept books for a merchant. I remained there four years, then sold out and engaged as a clerk with a merchant in Jonesville where I remained two years. I traveled about the country for some time and finally brought up at home. I remained at home two years, assisting my father in his business. Then I started west again, stopped at Tecumseh, clerking there and in Hillsdale, and in Lima, Indiana, until the gold fever broke out in California. In the fall of 1849 I started for California by way of Panama. The passage from there to San Francisco was 69 days, arriving in San Francisco Feb. 21, 1850. I went immediately to the mines with a party of ten from Bangor, Maine. We traveled afoot from Sacramento to Coloma, engaged in mining on a creek near the town for several weeks making an ounce a day. .... [Continued on A-5, Card #533.03]

Left in March for the mountains and spent the summer in mining on a fork of the American River but had very poor success. In October I left the mines in disgust, went to San Francisco and then to Santa Cruz, arriving here in the spring of 1851. The first summer I raised onions on part of the Majors tract. The next season I farmed with Dr. J. L. Andrews[sic] in a valley back of Mrs. Farnham's place, now Alex Russell's. The next season farmed with J. W. Alesworth on Hames and Daubenbiss' ranch near Soquel, now owned by the heirs of Mr. Tarleton. Then I clerked in the store of Anthony and Penfield while the former went east. The next year I bought an interest with Peter Warner in the Rountree place. In October, 1857, I married, sold my interest in the ranch and rented the adobe house and land around it then owned by Raphael Castro, now owned by Mrs. Boston, where I engaged in farming and selling milk. [Continued from A-5, Card #533.04]

A-5	592	People - Tresconi to Trust	TREVETHAN, William B in Eng. Aug. 18 '04, rescued from a South Sea island misadventure by countrymen, arriving in Mont. '24 with Capt. J. B. R. Cooper. This old sailor from the moment of his arrival until his death in Sta Cruz Jan. 19 '75 was one of the best liked men of the land, affectionately called 'Billy Pacheco' serving as majordomo of Mission San Miguel and sub-alcalde at Mission San Antonio, sawyer, farmer and teamster. His name appeared on the first Sta Cruz poll list. He seems to have arrived in this country first about '27 to become foreman of a farming endeavor undertaken by Capt. Cooper on Rancho Bolsa del Pajaro where Watsonville now is; in later years working in the Corralitos redwoods. He appears to have come to Sta Cruz to reside permanently after a mining experience. He was the father of Miguel do los Santos (Mike) Trevethan, who died here a year ago at the age of 96 years, the last of William's ten child. No less than four grandsons and an equal number of great grandsons of the old sailor reside here. There are several others in Watsonville.  [Article in Riptide -Ed.]

A-5	658.01	People - Wade th Watson	WATERS, James - Son of Joseph Gillis Waters, whose father, Richard, a native of Wales, settled about 1784 in Somerset County Maryland. Joseph Gillis Waters was born about 1803 or 1804, one of a family of nine. At the age of 24 he was married to Elizabeth Jane Ayers. James was born Oct. 18, 1828. His mother dying while he was quite young his father removed to Baltimore and he was left with a family on a plantation but soon went to live with his father's sister. At the age of 14 he was employed in a grain shipping house for about a year and then worked at the carpenter's trade until 20 years old. On June 20, 1849, he started for California on board the brig "Osprey", Capt. Oran, and had a pleasant trip until near Cape Henry in the Atlantic ocean where they encountered a severe storm, but it was over the next day. In about 60 days after leaving Baltimore they sighted the coast of Brazil and went to Rio de Janeiro. Having taken in their supply of water and fresh vegetables all arrangements were made to sail again but a heavy blow came up and a Swedish vessel lying ahead of them began to drag her anchor. A-5	658.02	People - Wade th Watson	[JAMES WATERS Continued from A-5, Card #658.01] Soon she was upon them and there being a heavy swell their ship was so badly damaged by the loss of jib boom, bowsprit, cutwater, etc., that they were compelled to lay up for repairs which took two months. During that time Waters found employment in a furniture manufacturing plant owned by an American and Englishman at Rio de Janeiro. They arrived at Callao, Peru, on December 17. There they remained four or five days and had an opportunity of visiting Lima. The trip from Callao to San Francisco was a long and tedious one but they finally arrived in San Francisco Feb. 17, 1850. Waters lived in San Francisco working at his trade of carpenter until February, 1851, when he sold his interest in the house and went in company with three others to Marysville where they got an outfit and went to the mines on the North Fork of the Feather River. Here he worked with varied success until July when with two other Baltimore boys he had fallen in with he went to San Francisco. [Continued on A-5, Card #658.03]
A-5	658.03	People - Wade th Watson	[JAMES WATERS Continued from A-5, Card #658.02] It was just after the big fire there of June, 1851, and as they were all carpenters they thought it would be a good chance for them to work at their trade. They soon got enough of city life and after four or five days stay they went up on the middle fork of the American River where they worked until fall. They started for the southern mines intending to winter there but they soon sold their outfit and returned to Frisco. In March, 1852, Waters determined to go to the mines again in company with two men. When they arrived at Sacramento on their way to Shasta they found the city nearly covered with only the tops of the houses above water. They took a small steamer and went up the Sacramento river and then with a coach until they reached their destination, about 10 miles from Shasta. They mined here until fall with indifferent success until in September they concluded to move to Weaverville, Trinity county, where they had a rough time on account of the rain and snow. About this time the town of Shasta was burned. Carpenters being in great demand they gave up mining and went to town, working as carpenters for a month or so and then went to Fort Reading, a government station on Cow Creek in the Sacramento valley. They worked there until January 1 when Dr. Wotencraft [sic; Wozencraft, Oliver Meredith, 1814-1887 -Ed.] came to the fort and hired them to go with him and a company to cross the Sierra Nevada mountains to ascertain the practicability of a transcontinental railroad. They traveled along until their mules gave out in the snow and then returned to the fort. Waters now returned to San Francisco in January, 1854, and went to work carpentering. Taking a contract to build a dwelling house on the northwest corner of Folsom and Second streets for Capt. Folsom and doing a great deal of carpentering work. [Continued on A-5, Card #658.05]

In January, 1855, Waters joined him after having a long journey in stage and having quite a few incidents on the journey. Santa Cruz at this time was quite a small village. Judge Rice kept a hotel in a small building where the Pacific Ocean House now stands. Skene and Aldrich kept the Santa Cruz House. Jim Prewett and Joe Riley kept the Eclipse Livery Stable. F. A. Hihn had a store in a triangular building on the lower plaza. John Werner was also in a small wooden building at his present stand. After spending a week or two at Rincon Mills, Waters returned to San Francisco to settle up his business and found that Page, Bacon &amp; Co., bankers, with whom he had deposited his money, had failed. That left him at the foot of the ladder again. He returned to the Rincon Mills and ran the mills himself long enough to ... [Continued on A-5, Card #658.06]

L. Halsted, the Douglas candidate. On September 9, 1861, Waters was married to Miss Malinda J. Short, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Short and sister of Mrs. J. A. In 1863 he sold this place and moved to Watsonville, bought 2-1/2 acres and built a residence where he has since resided. He continued the carpenter business however and among his contracts were the Abbott House in Salinas, the Watsonville bank building and the Gallagher building in Watsonville. He was supervisor for Pajaro district in 1872 for two years. In 1876 he bought out Blackburn's interest in the nursery which they had been running and has since continued it in connection with raising strawberries. In September, 1886, he paid a visit to his old home in Baltimore with his wife, remaining two months, and then returned to Watsonville. - o -

A-5	780.01	People - Wood th Woodside	WOODS John - Born in Georgetown, Brown Co., Ohio, on Sept. 30, 1818. Emigrated to Missouri in 1845 and there engaged in lumbering business. In 1846 he was engaged by a government agent to take a steamboat load of horses to St. Louis, Mo. From there he took another to New Orleans and was offered a wagon master's berth but being young and inexperienced he declined the offer. He then took charge of another cargo of horses and mules across the Gulf of Mexico to Matagordo Bay, Port Tobasco. There the government teams were fitted out and he had charge of one and was for one year in the service of Gen. Wool's division. After the war ended Woods returned to Missouri. While there he married and not having very good health in Missouri and having heard the flattering descriptions of California from one F. Lawson he concluded to bid his home and friends farewell. He started for California from Brunswick, Mo., April 20, 1848, with the Lawson Company, numbering about 50 persons. [Continued on A-5, Card #780.02]

In November, 1834, at los Angeles he signed with other foreigners a protest against being obliged to military service. In 1835 he settled in the Santa Cruz region and, says Bancroft his name from that year appeared often in Larkin's and other records. [Thomas Oliver Larkin was a Monterey merchant -Ed.] He was baptised in Holy Cross mission April 16, 1838, as Juan Jose Crisostomo, Americano, parents not known to be gentiles according to his say. Jose Bolcoff acted as godfather. In 1839 he was naturalized as a Mexican and married Maria de los Angeles.Castro He was arrested in 1840 but soon released. In 1841 he received grants of Zayante and San Augustin ranchos, selling the former to Graham. In 1842 he signed an appeal to the U.S. for sufferings while under arrest. In 1843 he signed a protest against Graham's offer of the services of Santa Cruz foreigners to Micheltorena and in 1843 served as juez de campo at Branciforte. In 1846 he was a witness at the trial of Naile's murderer. Alcalde in 1846; later in Santa Cruz council; chosen delegate to the constitutional convention but did not act because of a change in the basis of representation. He was claimant for San Augustin and wealthy for the time. Acquired his wife's third in Rancho Refugio and built his home there. He died May 25, 1868 and was buried near his home.

Died in a duel in Arizona two or three years later. On June 5, 1858, the Sentinel printed: "The last steamer from San Diego brought us the painful intelligence of the death of Benj. H. Miles, the representative of this county in the assembly of 1857. He perished in a duel (in Arizona) with Mr. Oury, whom he had challenged on account of some abusive language asserted to have been made by Oury in reference to himself and his brother, Edward Miles. Rifles at 30 paces resulted, as might naturally be expected, in the instant death of the challenger as he was not accustomed to the use of fire arms, he being shot through the neck. Mr. Miles came to California, we believe, from Maryland." "Attorney"; Justice of the peace at Watsonville in 1855.

It is true it is customary in the states, but consider the unsettled state of this country now. Graham has by some means in this neighborhood rendered himself unpopular amongst men that are permanently settled near S.C. -- men who have taken no part for our flag in this controversy; they are at home now and have been during the whole affair, while there are others and all of them are yet with Fremont with the exception of myself, who have been out with Capt. Fontleroy, who are residents here who would not like to see our countryman wronged. All I ask is for you to defer the matter until we all get home."

We received the $48 of James B. McClurg. Sept. 4, 1846. In the case of Graham versus Rosillion[sic] in which Rosillion was sentenced to pay Graham the sum of $67.29, Rosillion presented an accompt current against the firm of Graham &amp; Nail of $30, which left the balance of $37.29. Walter Colton, U.S. Justice. Aug. 30, 1846. Complaint of theft. Isaac Graham personally appeared before me at my office and after having been duly sworn testified as follows: That in July, 1845, I found Don Carlos Rosillion hauling the last of a pile of lumber which had contained the whole about ten thousand feet belonging to Graham and Nail to the beach to be shipd off by him on board of the ship Fama without my authority and for which said Rosillion has given me no satisfaction. In July, 1846, I had a pile of lumber containing five thousand feet near the beach in the vicinity of Santa Cruz a part of which I am informed was shipped off by Don Carlos Rosillion in July last with out my knowledge or consent, and for which no satisfaction has been given. I also had fifty joyce and 52 rafters near the same place and which I have every reason to believe were taken by the same (more) [continued on Card # 76]
A-6	76	People - Nabrick to Nye	[continued from Card #75] -2- Don Carlos Rosillion, one of them having been found in his possession. --- Graham offered as witnesses: George Chapel, Vincent Bonette, Francisco Soria, Joseph L. Majors and Mr. Hewitt. --- E. H. Dunn (whom Bancroft gives as first officer of the Fama; apparently Bancroft and others have confusion between Fama and Euphemia, which may be same vessel) gave an affidavit that he "said nothing to I. Graham to give him any idea or authority to take proceedings against Don Carlos Rousillon concerning timber received on board the brig Euphemia." It is dated Aug. 4, 1846. --- The verdict: "First- Lumber was taken by the defendant or his agents but was not appropriated for his use until settled for with Naile. Second- It was not by the direction of the defendant that the lumber was taken but through mistake, which was settled by him at once. Third- The amount which appears dto have been taken was 3243 feet which at $30 per thousand amounts to $97.29. Fourth- The jury are of opinion that 1,000 feet taken by Graham's agent though mistake from Don Carlos should be deducted from the $97.29 which will leave a balance of $67.29. Witnesses included Wm. Weare, Geo. Chapel, Alexander Bernado, Fr-co Albiso[sic], Wm. Davis, Fran-co Lodlo[?], Robert Quin, Bolcoff.

He was named in a Los Angeles list of that year. Soon afterward he went north to join Graham at his distillery. From 1838 his name appeared in Larkin's accounts and other Monterey records. In 1839 with Graham he had a plan to raise a party and cross the mountains eastward, which unfortunately failed. In 1840 he was seriously wounded in resisting arrest and for this reason was not one of the exiles. From that time he lived in the Santa Cruz region as a lumberman, being interested with Graham in a sawmill. In 1842 he signed an appeal to the U.S. for indemnity. He was naturalized in 1844; at Branciforte in 1845, aged 36 and single. In April, 1846, was killed by James Williams, who had rented his mill, in a quarrel about the contract. [Thomas Oliver Larkin was a Monterey merchant -Ed.]

Rodgers write[sic] of an Isaiah Porter who, some time prior to 1873, had bought from "Big Jim" what was known as Round Potrero, now (1933) known as the Longley ranch. He had a wife and stepson, Henry Greene. Rodgers speaks of "Big Jim" as original pioneer of Boulder Creek, who had opened a road from what is now Boulder Creek to Round Potrero, and opened access for settlers to tracts up toward the Big Basin. In 1873 Isaiah Porter raised $1200 by subscription, got a similar sum from Bernard Peyton, supervisor of San Lorenzo district, and was given the contract to build a road in the vicinity of Ben Lomond on the west side of the river, cutting out Priest's Ford and Hicks' Ford to the south of it. Apparently it followed along the west bank of the San Lorenzo about where the two Brackney bridges are. The Brackney bridges (named after a man living near there) were put in in the late seventies, when James Cormack of Felton was supervisor. The first road camp on the Porter contract, says Rodgers, was at the upper end, near Marshall creek, now sometimes called Hubbard Gulch. A-6	233.01	People - Ramsdale to Rustmeyer	[The following text is derived from an undated newspaper clipping, loose in file, unattached to a card. -Ed.] ROBLES 22 WHEN HE CAME TO BRANCIFORTE When the eight settlers from Guadalajara arrived at the blue print town of Branciforte on July 24, 1797, one of their number was a youngster of 22, Jose Antonio Robles, with a girl wife and a baby daughter. Branciforte had been surveyed the previous year by Lieut. Alberto de Cordova, an engineer of the Spanish army, who laid out on paper a village which would have adobe houses, built wall to wall about a square, with a church at one end and a governmental house at the other. Corporal Gabriel Moraga, ordered by Governor Diego Borica to come over from San Jose and have houses ready for the new pobladores, had failed. Instead of finding the new dwellings of adobe and tiled roof which had been promised them as gifts of the king, the settlers found, if anything, rude huts with thatched roofs. The settlers were pobladores, which meant with all the rights of citizens, but they were under strict military supervision. Their conduct was strictly watched by a comisionado. This official, in the beginning, was Moraga, then a 32-year-old veteran of California Indian fighting. NATIVE OF PUEBLO OF TLALTENANGO Of Robles' background in Mexico little is known. All eight of the settlers were offenders against rigorous laws of Spain, offered at Guadalajara a chance to begin a new life in California. Robles' son, Secundino, who was not born until 14 years after the family arrived, in a statement which in his old age he gave Bancroft, the historian, said that his father came to California "for political reasons." Secundino also said that his father was born in Zacatecas. Records of Santa Cruz mission contain an apparent entry that Robles was born in the Pueblo de Faltenango[sic]. The entry is poorly written; its spelling cannot be certainly discerned. A good guess is that it was the pueblo of Tlaltenango, a village which still exists, about halfway between Zacatecas and Guadalajara.

A-6	233.02	People - Ramsdale to Rustmeyer	[continued from Card # 233.1] Secundino's statement to Bancroft said that his mother had been born in Ahualco. No such town exists. Another good guess is that it was Ahualulco, which is near Tlaltenango. PLAT OF NEW TOWN WAS NEVER FOLLOWED The village built about a square, for which Cordova had sent a plat to Mexico City for approval, never was built. The Indians of the region about Santa Cruz mission were not warlike. No walled town was necessary, just as the mission across the river from Branciforte never needed a wall around its plaza. Cordova had, however, laid out a main street for his town, which is today's North Branciforte avenue. It was nearly level, which would be advantageous for horse racing on Sundays. Better still, it was close to the bank which sloped down to Branciforte creek and which was wet with many springs, which would furnish water for the new residents. Robles and his young wife were not deterred by the hardships of erecting their own home. A year later Moraga drew up for Governor Borica a report on what the new settlers were doing, crediting Robles with being the owner of five sheep, two oxen and two horses, and with having produced 14 fanegas of corn, one of wheat and two of beans. SON ANTONIO DIED FROM FALL OFF HORSE The first year in Branciforte brought Jose Antonio and Gertrudis a son, whom they took across the river to Santa Cruz mission and had baptized Jose Antonio de los Angeles, on August 5, 1798. Antonio grew to manhood here and at San Jose, which had the attractions of a large town. It was known to the Brancifortians as "el pueblo" while they referred to their own village as "la villa." At San Jose Antonio found a wife, in Petra Vasquez, daughter of Tiburcio Vasquez and his wife, Antonia Bojorges. Tiburcio was a son of Juan Anastasio Vasquez, member of the Anza party of settlers of 1776, and probably family friends of the Robles, for the Santa Clara records stated he [continued from Card # 233.2] Antonio's married life was short. Less than four months after his wedding his body was taken over to Santa Clara mission for burial. The priests recorded that he died from a fall from a horse. Petra gave birth to a son five months later, who was christened Policarpo at Santa Clara, with Grandfather Jose Antonio Robles as godfather and Petra's sister, Rosalia, as godmother. YOUNGER BROTHERS WERE WILD YOUTHS Antonio's younger brothers, Abelino, Fulgencio, Teodoro and Nicolas, were wild youths, who rode about the countryside, to San Jose and Monterey, not paying too much attention to whose horses they rode. In 1834 Juez de Paz Antonio Bolcoff sent Nicolas manacled "con un par de frillos" to Monterey for trial. Technically Nicolas was charged with insulting words and threats to one of the regidores of Branciforte. Records indicate that the insults grew out of an attempt to arrest Nicolas for having stolen a horse from Jose Antonio Higuera. In Monterey Nicolas was sentenced to go to Santa Barbara or Los Angeles. He returned soon, however, for in 1840 he was married in Santa Cruz mission to Lucia Soria. In 1839 the wild Robles boys were in trouble again. Prefect Jose Castro sent Lieutenants Joaquin de la Torre and Victor Linares, with three privates, over from San Juan Bautista to arrest nine members of the Robles, Salazar and Soria families for disorders in Branciforte. The prisoners, started on foot for San Juan Bautista, revolted at the affront of being asked to walk. The soldiers fired, Avelino was killed and Nicolas badly wounded. As an act of justice the affair was so botched that Prefect Castro dropped the charges against the others. [continued on Card # 233.4]

A-6	233.04	People - Ramsdale to Rustmeyer	[continued from Card #233.3] ROBLES DIED IN 1851 AT SAN JUAN BAUTISTA In most of the California towns the office of comisionado was a semimilitary post, usually held by a retired soldier, until Mexican independence from Spain in 1822. In Branciforte the post was given in 1817 to Jose Antonio Robles, the poblador who had come in 1797, who had no military record. The end of his term of office may have seen Robles looking for a more kindly climate in the Santa Clara valley. In 1821 he and Gertrudis appeared at San Juan Bautista to baptize their child, Estefana. It is probable that San Isidro or Las Animas ranchos, near present Gilroy, were only a winter home for Robles. The 1845 padron of Branciforte, the last taken under Mexican rule, showed him a resident here, aged 70. On August 21, 1851, he was buried at San Juan Bautista, recorded as one of "los fundadores de California". ###

A-6	266	People - Ramsdale to Rustmeyer	Thomas Russell Body found with bullet hole in head, morning of March 21, 62, in ravine back of Kirby tannery. (From an account by Richard C. Kirby) The land (Rancho La Libertad), afterwards the Russell tract, was given to Mr. Farnham by Captain Isaac Graham in 1846 in return for his efforts on behalf of Graham in Mexico in 1845. In 1850 Mrs. Farnham cam to Santa Cruz with Thomas Russell, father of Robert Russell, who is under treatment at St. Luke's hospital, SF. They came from Sing Sing, NY, where she was matron of the state prison. Thomas Russel's[sic] brother, John, owned a file factory at Sing Sing, employing convict labor. The farm did not prove successful, although Mrs. Farnham raised the first wheat in Santa Cruz by a white person, so it was leased to John C. Pelton, the father of the public school system in California, who occupied the lower part, while Russel[sic] resided on the hill where then was the Italian spring. He conducted a distillery, the effects of the output some of the citizens still here can bear witness to. Pelton's farming operations also proved unsuccessful. In 1856 Russell was murdered, his body being found by Mr. Kirby and Joseph Russell in the gulch that runs between the property of Messrs. Bliss and Jones, overlooking High street. The murderer never was found although F. A. Hihn had a detective working on the case. One arrest was made, but the evidence was insufficient to convict any person of the crime. Those who knew the name of the murderer kept it so secret that not a clue was found. Russell, who stood 6 feet 2 inches, was a man of pronounced character, well liked. He was a mechanical genius. (more) [continued on Card # 267]
A-6	267	People - Ramsdale to Rustmeyer	[continued from Card #266] (Sheet 2) Mrs. Farnham resided in the house afterward occupied by the Russells. She moved to SF where she taught school. Subsequently she married Fitzpatrick, who once had a sawmill here. They were afterward divorced. She went to NY, where she died. The farm was left to Charles, who was then in Europe. Mr. Kirby purchased the land of him for $1,000, intending to build his tannery on it, but Mrs. Kirby objected because of the associations connected with the place on account of Mrs. Farnham residing there, the latter being an intimate friend. Mr. Kirby gave part of it to the Evergreen cemetery. When a survey was made it was found that a part of the 210 acres, including the Italian spring, belonged to the Doderos, so that portion was set apart to them. Mr. Kirby sold the tract to Alexander Russell for $1500 and since then it has remained in possession of the Russell family. Robert Russell has relatives at Sing Sing, his uncle's family residing there. Those conversant with Robert's affairs deny he ever invested $5000 in an Oakland corporation. -Ir-

A-6	434.01	People - Tracy thru Trumbly	[The following undated newspaper clipping, perhaps from the San Francisco Chronicle is by Robert O'Brien -Ed.] RIPTIDES - The Great Ocean View H[orse]. (with a sketch of "THAD", the horse.)] "There are probably only a few of them left that were there when it happened, and if you tried to tell them of the brave performance of Talon in last Saturday's $100,000 Santa Anita handicap, they would stop you, like an Ancient Mariner, and recall the great and now legendary race of Thad Stevens, the little California-bred sorrel that rose from buggy shafts to the pedestal reserved for immortals of the turf. The race, called a "four-mile and repeat," took place in November, 1873—nearly 75 years ago—at the Ocean View Racing Park, by the shores of Lake Merced and hard by the convivial taverns then operated by Cornelius Stagg and Barney Farley, the noted sportsman and trainer of prize fighters. At stake was more than the $20,000 put up by the Pacific Jockey Club; on Thad Stevens' velvet nose rode the hopes and pride of all true sons of California, for against him were running two of the East's best horses: True Blue, the blood-bay son of the great Lexington, and Joe Daniels, winner of the mile-and-three-quarters Travers Stakes at Saratoga in the fastest time ever clocked for that classic. A few weeks before the race, they had been shipped to San Francisco in special cars, and no more attention could have been paid a Presidential Limited than to the progress of their trains across the continent. As the day of the test approached, interest and enthusiasm blazed high all over the Nation. "The excitement ..." said The Chronicle, "extended all over the Coast and across the mountains to the eastern verge of the continent. From Oregon to Florida, and from from the Rio Grande to the Passamaquoddy the deepest interest existed in regard to the grand tribal of speed." Daily trainloads of horsemen and race track followers arrived in San Francisco, where, from Tar Flat to Nob Hill and from the Barbary Coast to the beach, no one was talking of anything but the coming race. "It was to be," [continued on Card # 434.2]
A-6	434.02	People - Tracy thru Trumbly	[cont' from Card # 434.1] the papers said, "the greatest race ever run in this country, if not in the world." Barbers, bootblacks, merchants, stock exchange clerks, bankers, bartenders—the whole town, in short—were head over heels in speculation and hope for the chances of the 8-year-old sorrel, the California pet that all San Francisco knew affectionately as "Old Thad." Thad had enjoyed a career that had been somewhat short of brilliant. By Longford, out of Mary Ghilton, he had been foaled in San Jose in 1865, and had been reared on cow's milk. The next year, he had been sold at auction for $250. At the age of 4 he had been bought by George Treat, a San Francisco sportsman, who used him as a roadster and buggy horse, and once tried in vain to sell him for $500. In 1872 at Sacramento and Oakland, however, Thad began to show amazing ability as a running horse, and was clocked in one four-mile heat at 7 minutes 30 seconds, the fastest time (for a second heat) ever made in this country. As early as dawn on the day of the race, hundreds stood outside the whitewashed fence that circled the track, waiting for admission time. With the approach of noon, special trains began arriving at the station by the old Industrial School from San Jose and the San Francisco terminal at Bryant and Fourth. Conveyances by the hundreds, ranging from milk carts and lumber wagons to luxurious barouches and six-in-hand coaches, rolled out the Ocean road, raising long clouds of dust. "Fashion and famine, riches and poverty went hand in hand ..." said The Chronicle, "to see the race to see Thad Stevens win or die." By post time, there were 12,000, the greatest crowd ever attracted to a California sporting event, sitting tensely in the grandstands and milling around in the enclosures by the white, track rail. Thad Stevens, with Jockey Charley Ross up and carrying 114 pounds, was a two-to-one favorite over True Blue. There was to be the killing schedule of four heats, four miles each. Four horses—Thad, True Blue, Joe Daniels and a San Jose entry named Mamie Hall—got away in the first heat shortly after 2:30 p.m. It was won by Joe Daniels in 7 minutes 45 seconds (today's ..... [The unfinished clipping is trimmed off at that point.]

On Sept. 20, 1822, sailed from Plymouth Docks, England, on whaler Countess of Marley, Capt. Henry Best (an Irishman), of Plymouth. The vessel was large, being the sloop-of-war Kangaroo, razeed[sic], which was built by contract for the government during the war with Spain. Started for a four year voyage. In the Pacific isles and then to Owyhee, where the "crew became demoralized by the luxuries of that tropical Eden" and Trevethan left the ship and shipped on another whaler, the Mary, of London, for a cruise or until the Countess of Marley was ready to sail. The Mary was wrecked on Jarvis' reef, then uncharted, and remained nearly starving for three months, when the crew was rescued by two whalers, the Francis, Capt. Thomas Hunt, and the Vansetart, Captain Baden. On the former Trevethan returned to Fanning's Island, where he stayed two or three months with two Americans who were gathering beche[sic] de mer. The Fanning Island apparently in Hawaiian group. The American schooner, Rover, of Boston, Captain John Baptiste R. Cooper, arriving to trade for the beche de mer, took him to Manilla, Canton and back to the American northwest coast with silks, nankin and manufactured articles for the Russians and missions. On April 15 or 16 he landed at San Francisco. Governor Luis Arguello died soon after and Jose Maria Estrada (a relative of Arguello's) succeeded him. [continued on Card # 437]

Capt. Cooper and his chief mate, Rice (an old Nantucket whaler) and the second mate, Goodspeed, went ashore in the first boat, with Trevethan pulling bow oar. Great evergreen oaks of vigorous growth, stood in groves all over the terraced slopes around and above the town, which then only contained a few houses outside the presidio square and the mission buildings. This plaza was in front of the church building which formed the south-west corner of the square; the neophytes, or civilized Indians, lived in long rows of buildings, fronting inside the area. Long banks of fallen walls is all that remains of these tenements. William E. P. Hartnell had an adobe residence on the outside, and the foundation walls of Governor Estrado's residence were just laid. Mr. Hartnell was the local agent of an English commercial company, trading with the missions, and having a monopoly to buy and sell all merchandise required and shipped by the missions - dealing mostly in hides, tallow, dried meats, soap, furs and grain. The Collector of the Port of Monterey was Don Sebastian Pacheco, well known as the proprietor of the pass and the San Felipe and San Luis Gonzaga Ranchos. In this duty I often had to cross the bay to Santa Cruz (or Puebla of Branciforte) to get ship's supplies and procure provisions for the Spanish troops, about 100 of whom were in the garrison at the old fort under the hill where Fort Mervine was built in 1846-7. These trips across the bay were made in open whale-boats, by rowing and sailing, and were often dangerous (the boats being deeply laden) from the rough sea and strong and adverse currents drifting down the coast. The boats would row up the coast several miles north so as to catch the land breeze, then hoist canvas and sail into the bay, being carried into the harbor by the rolling swells pitching from the rocky coast. Our cargo generally consisted of beans, corn and jerked beef, with occasional furs and deerskins. (Ed. note: On account of this service Mr. Trevethan was called "Billy Pacheco" by the native Californians, an alias which he is generally known by at this time. Mr. Trevethan remained in the employ of the government over three years when he commenced working in the redwoods of Monterey, south of Carmelo river for the mission of San Carlos de Monterey. His fellow workman (whip-sawyer) was William R. Garner (Zapatos Largos) who, after the discovery of Gold, says Mr. T., "was killed by the Indians on King's river.) [continued on Card #439]

I then went to work in the Monterey pineries, but did not like it and soon after went to the mission of San Miguel to live with the priest (God bless him) having received the appointment of key-keeper to the mission stores and major-domo of the premises; the duties of which were to keep account of all receipts and expenditures, dispense subsistence supplies, clothing and medicines, as required, on order from the ruling authorities. (Ed. Note: The mission of San Miguel, in 1822, says Colton, "had 90,000 head of catle, 1100 tame horses, 3000 mares, 2000 mules, 170 yolk of working oxen and 47,000 head of sheep. The mules were used in packing the products of the mission to Monterey, and bringing back drygoods, groceries, and the implements of husbandry." It will be seen that the position of key-keeper to this immense wealth was a responsible trust.) "The Rev. Father Cabot was the sojourning priest. After the missions were secularized I removed to Monterey, and changing from place to place rapidly, but soon settled in the Santa Cruz redwoods, on the Amesti Ranch, and followed the old business of whip-sawing lumber, with Mark West and William R. Garner, both from London, England. Then there were no wagon roads in the country, only horse trails from Pajaro to Santa Cruz, no ox-teams traveling anywhere. "Slay and eat," was the privilege of all, and nothing but the private brand or mission claim marked the ownership of the millions of livestock that roamed on the thousands of hills, covered with nutritious grasses. "In 1826 the legal, or "ranchal," (a stipulated price officially regulated by the missions) for stock was as follows: two-year-old heifers, $3; full-grown steers, $6; cows, $8; large young milch cows with sucking calves, $10; or four cows for a thousand feet of lumber. Horses sold at $5 to $20 each; sheep 50 cents (four reals) a head, by the drove; choice mutton sheep at $1 each. Dried beef, jerked, sold at 50 cents the aroba (25 pounds), and beans, wheat and barley sold at $2 to $2.50 the fanega (150 pounds). This was the regulation price of produce, fixed by the Board of Trade, and no one was permitted to sell at higher rates, but they could sell as much lower as they pleased. "When I arrived in Santa Cruz first Joaquin Buelna was Alcalde, then Rafael Castro. Branciforte was the civil government, all across the river was the mission gardens, and owned by the padres. The Indians could not cross the river without a permit. I was married in Santa Cruz October 6, 1841 to Maria Antonio Perez. Padre Antonio Real performed the ceremony. The Carbonera was then owned by William Thompson, alias Bocle, a brother of old Sam, who lives up at Charley Martin's on Bear Creek. Sam is an older pioneer than I am, having landed about one year previous to my arrival (the editor says he arrived in 1820). James McKinley, from the Grampian Hills, Scotland, who has a large sheep ranch in San Luis Obispo County, is also an older resident, and Captain David Spence of Monterey. These are the only older pioneers now living that I can remember at this time. James Watson, formerly of Monterey, arrived with him. They left an English whaler at Santa Barbara a short time before I arrived. McKinley was a cooper, and followed his trade, and Watson set up a small store. They both worked at first for Hartnell in the English company's employment. Captain Cooper also opened and kept a store in Monterey soon after landing. "Before the war (the Mexican war of '46-7) I moved to the redwoods on San Francisquito creek, Santa Clara Valley, and commenced sawing lumber. At that time Captain John Burton was Alcalde at San Jose, and being a leading man in the redwoods, speaking English and Spanish fluently, I was appointed Sub-Alcalde for the district, to keep matters straight and the rough woodsmen in good order.. I then sold lumber for $200 per thousand feet, as fast as the mill could cut it; one plank 14 feet long and three wide, brought $5; parties from San Juan purchased the lumber. Below the mill dam on the Rincon each year large numbers of salmon were caught in season and cured for the market. Salmon also run[sic] in large numbers in the Pajaro, at the Amesti rancho far up in the redwoods, in all the small streams. There was also an abundance of brook trout of large size. At that time the streams were not washed out as much by floods, and the water was cold, clear and pure - much more so than at this time. All the hills, woods and plains were filled with deer, elk and antelope. I often saw droves of them quietly feeding near by our camp on the San Andreas Rancho. This rancho was then owned by Don Joaquin Castro, who died some time ago. Then we had tood times. The Spaniards would go out and lass all the elk and deer they wanted, with now and then a grizzly bear, bring them into camp each week; then give a baile[sic], with a continuous round of country amusements lasting for a week at a time. Happiness was supreme and care and want unknown among the simple and honest herdsmen." Trevethan says he never experiences an earthquake as severe as any of those of '67-70. No remarkable drouths or floods occurred in the past 44 years and he never heard of any from the oldest settlers. Working in the redwoods in an early day were Captain (Ezekial) Merritt, or stuttering Merritt, with the Frenchman, Bautiste, Job F. He had ten children, six alive, two married. Hale and hearty.

A-6	495	People: Wable thru Waugaman	JOHN H. WATSON - Born in Georgia about 1810. Attended Westpoint two years. Returned to Georgia and studied law. Reported to have killed a man and gone to Texas about 1846. After three years he left San Antonio to go to California in the gold rush. Said to have been married in Texas but no record of wife in California. He brought a negro slave, Jim, who soon afterward bought his freedom. Appointed district judge when the county was formed, served from April 19, 1850, until he resigned in April, 1851, to be succeeded by C. P. Hester. He practiced law, operated a sawmill near Watsonville, and in 1859 was elected to the senate. He never returned to Santa Cruz county, but went to Nevada in the Washoe mining excitement. He was five feet ten, broad and heavy. Hair was dark and curly and he wore a dark beard which set off his black eyes and gave him a serious kindly look. It is said Watson and D. H. Gregory laid out Watsonville but did not name it. At Elko he and U.S. Senator W. M. Stewart were declared the ablest attorneys in Nevada. He was a southern sympathizer. As an expert in mining law he had part in locating several mines. After searching I found a dagger, revolver, etc. There was a challenge between them of deadly feud to fight the matter out. It was regarding the Zayante saw mill business. Mr. Snyder and Blackburn was the day previous acting as umpire for them, to settle their business; not appearing satisfactory to Williams, death was the most easy way to clear up points. I was commissioned to follow Williams with a posse of men to capture him and bring him to the court house. I followed him as far as Don Jose Amesti's ranch and finding that he was a long distance of time and road in advance I returned to Santa Cruz. The next thing I heard of James Williams he had given himself up to the authorities at Monterey. This occurrence happened during my residence in Santa Cruz, which was subsequent to Graham's return from imprisonment in the year 1840." In 1841 when Weeks was at William Gulnac's in San Jose he met Peter Lassen and Frederick Engle. They expressed a willingness to go to Santa Cruz. He drove them to Zayante. They heard, he said, of the (later known as the) Almaden mines. Engle said he was posted on minerology and they examined it, but he reported his knowledge not sufficient, so it was not until 1845 that Don Andres Castillero found it was quick silver. S.C. April 3, 1853, on horseback across the mountains on "the Indian trail". April 18 he opened a saddlery shop in a building adjoining the Eagle or Ross stables on Front st which in 1889 belonged to Ladd &amp; Parsons. After 6 mo. he moved to a building which in 89 was occupied by Chace's butcher shop. It was the last house on Pacific avenue, which was then, said Werner in 89, known as "Back street" in contradistinction to "Front street". In 54 he erected a house on Front street directly back of a (lather) building which in 89 was occupied by Werner himself. (stet) In 57 he claimed he put up the first brick building on Front street, which was in 89 occupied by Charles Hohman. Werner said (89) it was the first brick building in SC. In 78 he moved into the [sic] which he still occupied in 89. He is listed as early neighbors: Charles Winterhalder, watchmaker. John B. Arcan, Andrew Trust, baker. The Cooper Bros., John W. and Wm. F. F. A. Hihn had a merchandise store in what was (in 89) called the steamboat because of the prow like angle formed by its front toward the lower plaza. In 1868 in brick bldg on Main st. Native of Prussia; naturalized in 1858.

Any pupils from "Old Aptos" on the west bank continued to attend at Soquel, although there is no known record that any did so. The new district of Union was carved out of Soquel, Oak Grove and San Andreas. Oak Grove had been created in 1859 and in 1871 became Corralitos. Union stayed in existence until 1910 when, with its area much diminished, its name was changed to Pleasant Valley. Aptos school district was legally created in 1867. B-1	654.01	Boulder Creek	BOULDER CREEK 1870 W. S. Rodgers said John Alcorn homesteaded 160 acres where Boulder Creek is in 1870 and built a "hotel" which grew into the Boulder Creek House which burned in 1933. It was, says TLMcHugh [sic], a station on the stage road across the mountains to Saratoga. Alcorn's cabin was the only other building in the town, standing on the bank of the river down by the present swimming pool. Late in 1879 J. F. Olmstead bought old Alcorn place on Bear Creek. Bought from R. E. Wood, who was going to Tahoe to live. [continued on Card # 654.2]
B-1	654.02	Boulder Creek	[continued from Card # 654.01] Its original purpose was to serve as a way station on the old stage route up the San Lorenzo valley from Santa Cruz and across the hills to Saratoga. The building passed successively through the hands of Demitrius Crediford and J. S. Carter until in the late 70s it became the property of the San Lorenzo Flume and Transportation Company which built and operated the flume by which sawed lumber was sent down the San Lorenzo valley to the new narrow gauge railroad at Felton. When the flume company was absorbed by the South Pacific Coast railroad the hotel went with it. Addition Built Before the South Pacific narrow gauge road was taken over by the Southern Pacific company it sold the hotel to George Dennison who in 1889 built the north annex. In 1905 the hotel was acquired by Mrs. Fannie Welch. During her ownership it was operated for short times by Joseph Ball of Felton and Samuel D. Morgan of Santa Cruz. After Mrs. Welch's death it was operated by her daughter, Mrs. Frank Murphy who is still a resident of Boulder Creek.

(Anthony's book)[see Notes] 1873 conference: Santa Cruz circuit has embraced Felton, Ben Lomond and Boulder Creek, though the latter place is merely the name of the post office, the church being in Lorenzo, nearby. At different times other points of less importance have received notice. For several years past Felton and Ben Lomond have not been visited, the work being confined to Lorenzo and Boulder Creek. Here we have a very comfortable church and parsonage and a small membership. It was left to be supplied in 1873 but it seems no one could be found to take it. In 1874, W. P. Hendon. In 1875 it was left to be supplied. There seems to have been no further attention given this region until [continued on Card # 657.2]

Davis, supercargo and later S.F. merchant. Short breeches extending to the knee, ornamented with gold or silver lace at the bottom, with botas (leggings) made of fine deer skin or other nice skin, well tanned and finished and richly colored and stamped with beautiful devices. These articles were imported from Mexico, where they were manufactured. The botas were tied at the knee with silk cord, two or three times wound around the leg, with heavy gold or silver tassels hanging below the knee. They wore long vests with filagree buttons of gold or silver or brass. No long coats but a kind of jacket of good length most generally of dark blue cloth, also with filagree buttons. Over that a long serape or poncho, which cost $100 to $200. The

B-2	2.01	County Roads	1850 May 23. Thomas Kittleman appointed road supervisor. Sept. 13. Gervis Hammond named road supervisor and ordered by the court of sessions to accompany County Surveyor Edmund B. Kellogg in laying out "good and roomy" roads around the mission "by which teams may enter and leave". It was added that it was to be the duty of the road supervisor and the surveyor to see that no public road or square be built upon or otherwise obstructed. The same day Kellogg, Francisco Alzina and Eli Moore were appointed commissioners to examine and report on a petition (presented by several residents) for a road through the lands of Messrs. (B.A.) Casem [sic] (Eli) Moore, (Hiram) Imus and (Harry) Speale. The same day the court resolved that the county surveyor should make a survey of the town of Santa Cruz and [continued on Card # 2.2]

The surveyor, Alzina and Moore reported on the road asked by Cooper, Stevenson and others through the lands of Case, Moore, Imus and Speale that construction of the road would "prove to be of practical utility and particularly without expense, and of benefit [continued from Card # 2.2][continued on Card # 2.4]

B-2	21	County Roads	ROAD - Wats.  In April, 1855, supervisors ordered a road viewed from Watsonville to the summit of the mountain near McMullin's mill.
B-2	22.01	County Roads	TURNPIKES 1855-60.  About 1855 the feasibility of a wagon route directly across the mountains from Santa Cruz to San Jose was discussed and a joint committee of three men from each county named to view out a route. Santa Clara county proceeded with organization of a stock company which built a road south and west from San Jose to "Santa Cruz gap". At a meeting in Soquel on January 30, 1858, Judge Henry Rice was appointed chairman and F. A. Hihn secretary. On Elihu Anthony's motion a committee was appointed to inquire into the expediency and practicability of a wagon road and to form a joint stock company to build such a road, consisting of Anthony, Samuel A. Bartlett N. Holcomb, F. A. Hihn and John Hames. [continued on Card # 22.2]

B-2	56.01	Courts-Court House- Jails	Title to court house site. Charles B. Younger [Jr.] letter to supervisors: Sept. 25, 1925. Gentlemen: I have observed in the morning paper an advertise- ment of your intention to purchase the right, title and interest of certain persons in lot 5 of block 9 as shown on Map A of the former town, now city of Santa Cruz, for sums aggregating $6,850. The persons named are presumable heirs at law, devisees or distributees of the Cooper brothers - William F., John L. and Thomas S. -- and of Thomas W. Moore. These men made a conveyance dated April 20, 1866, filed October 12, 1866, and of record in volume 8 of deeds, at pages 471 to 473, Santa Cruz county records, whereby they purported to grant to the county of Santa Cruz a lot fronting on the southerly side of Cooper street, in Santa Cruz, 110 feet square, for courthouse purposes, with provision for reversion if the lot failed to be continuously used for such purpose. [continued on Card # 56.2]
B-2	56.02	Courts-Court House- Jails	[continued from Card # 56.1][continued on Card # 56.3]  These grantors never had any title and nothing could revert to them or their successors in interest. The most they may have had was possession. At the date of their deed all real property within the limits of the town of Santa Cruz belonged to the United States of America with the exception of the mission land and two small grants within the limits of the city. The title of the United States was by an act of congress approved July 23, 1866, relinquished and granted to the corporate authorities of the town and their successors, in trust for and with authority to convey so much of said lands as was in the bona fide occupancy of parties upon the passage of the act. Subsequently, by deed dated March 4, 1867, and filed for record March 9, 1867, in volume 9 of deeds, at page 56, the trustees of the town of Santa Cruz conveyed this property to the county of Santa Cruz.

B-2	56.03	Courts-Court House- Jails	[continued from Card # 56.2][continued on Card # 56.4] It has been established in several decisions of the supreme court of this state that the title to the property within the city comes from the United States to the trustees of the inhabitants of the town and from them to the persons the trustees determined to be entitled to conveyance thereof. It was held in Labish v. Hardy, 77 Cal., 327, that Hardy, who had been in possession of certain property on Beach Hill, and whose first wife had died some ten years prior to the passage of the act of congress above referred to, had no title in the property until after he received his deed from the corporate authorities of the town of Santa Cruz, hence that the plaintiff could claim no right by virtue of the property having been community property of her parents.
B-2	56.04	Courts-Court House- Jails	[continued from Card # 56.3][continued on Card # 56.5] This matter was again gone into in the case of City of Santa Cruz v. Southern Pacific Railroad Company, 163 Cal., 538, 542-544, and it was again determined that the title to the property within the city was derived from the United States, and until the United States divested itself of title, that no one had title to the property and could acquire title only from the corporate authorities of the town of Santa Cruz. It was held in F. A. Hihn Co. v. City of Santa Cruz, 170 Cal., 436, that the title of the plaintiff, which had been acquired from the trustees of the inhabitants of the town of Santa Cruz, acting under the authority of the aforementioned act of congress, was superior to the title claimed by the city through an act of the legislature approved March 21, 1872.
B-2	56.05	Courts-Court House- Jails	[continued from Card # 56.4] It seems obvius that no one has any title to that property except the county of Santa Cruz, and it seems an idle and useless thing to spend money to acquire nothing, and I protest against the proposed purchase of any so-called rights of any one in and to the courthouse lot. Yours, Charles B. B-2	58.01	Courts-Court House-Jails	(Count house and jail -3-) May 8, 1860. The county clerk was ordered to advertise for sealed proposals to be delivered to him on or before May 29, 1860, for boarding prisoners in the county jail and taking care of the indigent sick in the county, the lower floor of the county court house and adjoining offices to be furnished to the applicant whose offer was accepted. The clerk was also directed to advertise for sealed proposals for building, but this action was later reconsidered. Aug. 15, 1860. Hugo F. Hihn [sic] presented a proposal to the board to rent the upper part of his brick building for county purposes at $40 a month. The offer was accepted by the supervisors who appointed J. P. Stearns, Samuel Drennan and D. J. Haslam a committee to superintend the arrangements. [continued on Card # 58.2]
B-2	58.02	Courts-Court House-Jails	[continued from Card # 58.1][continued on Card # 58.3] Aug. 28, 1860. Hugo F. Hihn applied for a loan of the county building fund for two years at 1-1/2 percent interest a month. It was granted him. Nov. 10, 1860. Samuel A. Bartlett was appointed to take charge of and rent the old court house. Dec. 1, 1860. Charles Myers, charged with grand larceny, escaped from the jail. He was caught three days later. G. N. [sic] Bockius called a special session of the court of sessions to try the case "because of the insecurity of the county jail." May 19, 1861. The supervisors, taking up consideration of the old court house, ordered F. A. Hihn to take charge of it, have it cleaned and placed in condition to preserve it from ruin. A contract with Hugo Hihn and Charles Bern was entered into for the rent of the building for three years.

Hihn was authorized to hire out a prisoner, Joseph Chaveness, to such persons and at such times as shall seem suitable. May 6, 1863. The supervisors, considering the condition of the county jail, resolved to act as a committee to receive plans and specifications for a new jail and report on June 1. The matter went over to the first Monday in August, when F. A. Hihn and B. A. Barney were authorized to adopt such modes of obtaining further plans and specifications for a new jail as in their judgment they may deem advisable. Hihn was given authority to open a granite ledge to "such an extent[sic] as to provide the practicability of using granite rock in erection of said jail".

B-2	171	Electric Lights	ELECTRIC LIGHTS First electric light in S.C. was in 1885. 1889 F.W. Swanton and Dr. H.H. Clark introduced incandescent light. Their rates were (for 300 16-candle power lamps): $1.25 per lamp per month, to 9 p.m. $1.75 12 m.m. $2.50 all night. 1891 cut rate to $1 and $1.50. 1892 cut rate by introducing 10-candle power lamps to 9 p.m. James M. McNeal, traveler from Penn., became interested in Santa Cruz and bought out Clark. He also bought the gas works. 1893 - the 75¢ 10-candle power lamps were to burn to 9:30 p.m. The gas rate was made $3 per m. feet.

B-2	278.01	First Jury Trial	First Jury Trial Aug. 30, 1846. Complaint of theft. Isaac Graham personally appeared before me at my office and after having been duly sworn testified as follows: That in July, 1845, I found Don Carlos Rosillion [sic] hauling the last of a pile of lumber which had contained the whole of ten thousand feet belonging to Graham and Nail [sic] to the beach to be shipped off by him on board of the ship Fama without my authority and for which said Rosillion has given me no satisfaction. In July, 1845, I had a pile of lumber containing five thousand feet near the beach in the vicinity of Santa Cruz a part of which I am informed was shipped off by Don Carlor [sic] Rosillion in July last without my knowledge or consent, and for which no satisfaction has been given. I also had fifty joyce [sic] (over) [continued on Card # 278.2]

U.S. Justice. First Jury Trial (Undated) VERDICT - "First- Lumber was taken by the defendant or his agents but was not appropriated for his use until settled for with Naile. Second - It was not by the direction of the defendant that the lumber was taken but through mistake, which was settled by him at once. Third - The amount which appears to have been taken was 3243 feet which at $30 per thousand amounts to $97.29. Fourth - The costs to be paid by Graham as Don Carlos once offered to settle it amicably. Fifth - The jury are of the opinion that 1,000 feet taken by Graham's agent through mistake from Don Carlos should be deducted from the $97.29 which will leave a balance of $67.20. (over) [continued on Card # 282.2]

The story, being often repeated, attracted the attention of ___ Robles, who was among the first to take possession by permission of the padres. Robles afterward gave the mine to Robert Walkinshaw (agent of Barron, Forbes &amp; Co.) for a ranch. The mine was worked in early times by the Indians to get the vermillion in the cinnebar for red paint. The Santa Clara Indians had a monopoly on the product and [continued on Record # 367.2]

Purchasers of the 'units' rallied; $30,000 more was authorized. Fred Garrison was made president to replace Trafton, who had died, in May, 1926. By September the hole was down 2300 feet and it was calculated $98,000 had been spent. In February, 1927, it was decided $15,000 was needed to buy a rotary drill. The well was down 2400 feet. An issue of 50,000 shares was authorized. Santa Cruzans, who had been well pressured into buying stock, were skeptical. Before the end of February, 1928, drilling stopped at 3325 feet. The public was told that $119,000 had been spent and the company had $50,000 worth of equipment.
B-2	778.04	Oil Wells	[continued from Card #778.3] In February, 1929, Garrison asked a meeting of stockholders in the chamber of commerce rooms to pay a third 10 cent assessment. The plea raised enough money to resume drilling. By April, 1930, stories were published that gas was forcing its way up and that a gusher was feared. The hole was caving and money scarce. In October, 1930, the rotary drill was leased to a company putting down a well in Bodfish canyon, in the southern end of the county. A further plea for money was made in 1931 but Santa Cruzans were through sinking cash in the project.

B-3	25	Railroads	RAILROAD 1870  Bill introduced in legislature in 1870 to create the San Mateo & Santa Cruz RRd Co. It was planned to allow the Menlo Park & S.C. Turnpike Co. and the San Lorenzo RR Co to consolidate and build a tramway with either wooden or iron rails.
B-3	26	Railroads	SANTA CRUZ RAILROAD Legislative act April 4, 1870, empowered any county to vote 20 year 7 pct bonds to subsidize rrd. SC county Nov. 5, 1872, voted $240,000 for road to run from Pajaro depot, across San Lorenzo between Soquel ave. and bay shore, and up coast to NY point. Supervisors made contract with S.C.RR Co on Aug. 4, '73. The statute was repealed in Jan. 1874. The RR Co built merely to SC and sued for bonds. State Sup. Ct. reversed lower court ruling favoring RR by holding failure of RR Co to build entire route outlined in bonding proposal invalidated whole issue. The SC RR Co. had agreed to build Pajaro to SC for $90,000. The sup. ct. held this agreement outside the authority of the supervisors.
B-3	27	Railroads	RAILROAD Bonds In spring of 1870 bill drawn by F. A. Hihn went through legislature that counties, on vote of the people, could bond for 5% of assessed value to subsidize railroads. ---- In special election Dec. 11, 1871, county voted by majority of 602 to issue $100,000 in bonds for subsidy for railroad to S.C.
B-3	28	Railroads	RAILROADS 1870  The San Francisco, Santa Cruz and Watsonville railroad was givven rights in 1870 by SF city council. It planned to build by way of Half Moon Bay, Butano and down the San Lorenzo valley.
B-3	29	Railroads	RAILROADS — Southern Pacific - 1871  During 1871 the Contract and Finance Co. started construction of Southern Pacific line south from Gilroy. Two miles [s]outh of that town the road branched, one line continuing south to Tres Pinos and the other swinging west to Watsonville junction. This latter branch was opened for traffic on Nov. 27, 1871. By Nov. 1, 1872, it was opened to Salinas. It reached Pajaro late in 71. Its locomotives were wood burning and named; Comanche; Raven; Mohawk; Dan Rice; Menlo Park and Shoshone.

B-3	40.01	Railroads	South Pacific Coast Railroad Co. [1878] During this time the South Pacific Coast Railroad Company was building a narrow gauge road from a pier on San Antonio creek to Santa Cruz, via Newark and San Jose. This road was financed and built by James G. Fair and his associates. It was their intention to continue the line down Salinas valley, across the coast range through Pacheco pass, and ultimately to meet the Denver &amp; Rio Grande, which at that time was building a narrow gauge railroad west. The road was built under the name of several different companies, including the Santa Cruz and Felton, Bay and Coast, Oakland Township, San Francisco and Colorado River, Felton and Pescadero, and the Almamen branch railroad. [continued on Card #40.2]
B-3	40.02	Railroads	[continued from Card #40.1][continued on Card #40.3] The first section was opened from Santa Cruz to old Felton on Oct. 13, 1878. This line was joined near Big Trees on May 15, 1880, by a line from the north extending from Dumbarton Point near Newark through San Jose and Los Gatos. A street car line between Newark and Centerville was placed in operation in February, 1882. During 1878 the wharf had been constructed at Alameda Point and a line built to Newark, which was first operated with the ferry service on June 1, 1878. The company had three ferry boats, the Newark, Bay City and Garden City, which landed in San Francisco at a slip at the foot of Market street. A bridge was built across San Antonio Creek to Webster street, Oakland, and was opened to traffic May 30, 1881. Later the line was extended to 14th and Franklin streets and opened for traffic Oct. 1, 1886.

B-3	42	Railroads	RAILROAD fare In April, 1879, from SC, by Wats., to SF. cut to $4.25. Round trip tickets sold in SF for $7.
B-3	43	Railroads	SANTA CRUZ RAILROAD CO. 1880 The bridge over the San Lorenzo went out in the winter of 1880-81 and Hihn sold the railroad to the Southern Pacific, which repaired the bridge and put it in operation again. The formal sale came on Oct. 1, 1881, when "Commissioner" Wanzer sold the railroad to satisfy the mortgage bond holders. F. A. Hihn made a formal bid of $198,705 on behalf of the Pacific Improvement Co., a S.P. subsidiary.
B-3	44	Railroads	RAILROAD BONDS  In Feb. 1881, bonded indebtedness of county was $201,300, which included $114,000 of railroad bonds. In its treasury was cash to $56,002.
B-3	45	Railroads	FELTON RAILROAD The "Felton" was used by Sen. Fair on Telegraph avenue line in Oakland about 1881. Horse cars were operated from Broadway to 36th and Telegraph, the city limits. Then a locomotive pulled a small coach to the University, now Sather gate. Later the Felton was replaced by South Pacific Coast locomotives 1, 2 and 3, at different times, all small locomotives. Felton No. 1 went to the Lake Tahoe Lumber & Fluming Co. in Nevada. In 1900 it was bought by the Nevada County Narrow Gauge line and in 1915 was scrapped. On Feb. 23, 1897 the locomotive of the Dougherty railroad jumped the track and with one car went 50 feet into Boulder cree[k]. It was No. 2 of the two locomotives of the SC and Felton. Engineer Skelton and Conductor Gaffrey[sic] jumped.
B-3	46	Railroads	RAILROAD BONDS  In Jan. 1881, the ALTA said: In 1872 the people of Santa Cruz county by a vote of 927 to 564 authorized railroad bonds. Semi-annual interest on them was paid until 1881 when the supervisors ordered the treasurer not to pay them any more. This resulted from a supreme court decision which led the Santa Cruz people to think they could escape payment of the bonds.

B-3	115.01	Real Estate	REAL ESTATE 1867 (Walnut avenue)  Was laid out in July, 1867. The west side of Pacific avenue between Church and Lincoln was an orchard when F. A. Hihn bought it for $1000 an acre and laid out a 66 foot street, an unprecedented width. Property holders up to that time had considered 50 feet a good width and many of the streets were 30 feet wide with a foot path at each side. Hihn allowed for a 12 foot plank sidewalk at each side and offered his lots for $8 a front foot. He hoped that the new thoroughfare would be extended across Pacific avenue and Front street to a bridge across the river and would, with Soquel, constitute the main thoroughfare across the city to the coast.
