Preferred Citation:

Jean Stinchfield Ambassador Hotel Publicity, Seaver Center for Western History Research, Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History

Related Collections:

P-49 Pictorial California (for its photographs and publicity shots of celebrities, political figures and other well-known individuals)

Historical Note:

The Ambassador Hotel opened in 1921 in the mid-Wilshire district of Los Angeles. The hotel is famously remembered for the site where Senator Robert F. Kennedy was shot during a campaign event in 1968. The hotel closed to guests in 1989. Preservationists including the Los Angeles Conservancy were unsuccessful in preventing its demolition in 2005.

Biographical Note:

Stinchfield began as the hotel publicist about 1949 as an inexperienced widow with young children. Later in her career she remarried, and some of the collection contains the name Jean Lambertson, however, in some later items the name Stinchfield was still used. She retired in the late 1960s, and Margaret Burk took over in 1969.

Scope and Content Note:

Photographs, correspondence, press releases, clippings, and memorabilia collected by Jean Stinchfield, Publicity Director, Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles, California.

Primarily photographs of celebrities and political figures; the collection omits the year 1968 when presidential candidate Robert F. Kennedy was fatally shot while campaigning at the hotel, however, there is an earlier photograph of John F. Kennedy at a podium. Memorabilia includes ephemera, programs and miscellaneous publications; materials reflect: the history of the Cocoanut Grove nightclub (including the Grove's re-opening in 1957); the breadth of hotel events for organizations and international affairs (including the first Japanese-American debutante ball, the Richard M. Nixon visits in 1958 and 1960, and the Nikita Khrushchev visit in 1959); the establishment of the hotel's permanent press room; hotel employees in photos and publications; Stinchfield's biographical files; and a taped interview with her in 1987.

Most of the materials were collected by Stinchfield in the course of her years employed, however, there are early photographs and memorabilia dated prior to her time with the hotel.
