PORTLAND PERSONALITIES

Rikichi Maeda is working at the Russian Warehouse.
Mioka Tsuboi is working for the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Mrs. Fumi Sakano and her two children are living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Minejiro Manumoto in a Federal Housing project at 7901 Oak Leaf Place.

Franklyn Charles Uyeda is picking berries at the Mas Fujimoto farm near Gresham.

Yono Joyce Yamada is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Yamada at the Wabash Hotel which the Yamadas operate.

Nora Hoshi returned with her family to Vashon Island and is working in a Greenhouse there. Happy to be home she reports that the Island sheriff is very nice and that he told the Hoshi family that if they ever needed him to call on him at any time.

Tomi Kono and Mary Ogawa are rooming together. Tomi is working at the Portland WRA office and Mary is working at the warehouse.

Yoshiko Hachiya is a teletype operator for the Federal Communications Commission.

Eunice and Esther Torii are making a great success of their college career at Macalester College at St. Paul, Minnesota. Esther has been on the honor roll for the last three years, was president of the Freshmen dorm girls, art editor of the school annual, president of the Classical Club and member of the Theta Alpha Lambda. Eunice, who has just completed her first year at Macalester, is working at a negro settlement house as an arts and handicraft instructor and at a Jewish Educational Center as dramatics instructor. One of the most enjoyable features of college, they both agree, is "dorm life" and particularly the cakes, cookies and fried chicken sent by their dorm mates' mothers which always attract girls into one single room.

Mrs. Kiyoshi (former Ruth Uyeda) is a medical secretary. While at Minidoka Ruth worked in the Personnel Office and Kiyoshi taught Americanization in the Adult Education Program. Ruth writes: "were it not for evacuation and WRA assistance, we would never have dreamed of making our home in New York with a bright future before us.

Izuto Otani is recognized as one of the best dairy breeders around Rockford, Illinois. He lives in Poplar Grove and a year ago as a resident of Gila River had never been within two feet of a cow.

K. Patrick Okura is employed as an Assistant Director at Father Flannigan's Boys School and his wife is working as a secretary. Prior to evacuation he worked for the Department of Public Assistance under the Civil Service Commission in Los Angeles. Okura says that there are approximately 200 resettlers in Omaha including 28 Issei families and 34 Nisei families. About 75 relocatees are located in the industrial district, 60 of these are technicians or skilled workers. Thirteen are engaged in agriculture or gardening, 16 are working as domestics, 10 are attending college and 10 are stenographers. Omaha also has a relocatee doctor, a psychologist, a dietician and a registered nurse. He also reports that all those who have resettled in Omaha have obtained good living quarters in respectable neighborhoods.

Following is a letter from Grant Beppu to V. V. McLaughlin, Relocation Program Officer. Grant and his two brothers, Taft and Lincoln, are employed at the Sioux Ordnance Depot at Sydney, Nebraska:

Dear Mr. McLaughlin:

Just a word or two to let you know how we are all getting along. I know that I have had no regrets in my seventh month of relocation here. My wife and I like it here, and my boy, going on his fourth year, is really keeping better health and getting better training being on the outside.

Our relatives who have visited us from various so-called big cities in the East are really surprised with the choice of meat, butter and vegetables we can get now and then at our P.X. and in the small town of Sidney. When they see butter on sale they can hardly believe their eyes. One of the two families out here does a little business selling fish about one day a week, and another party sells all varieties of Japanese food shipped in from Denver, so we get all the Japanese food we like to eat.

Housing is nice.....

Taft and Link are working as crew foremen, and I am a truck driver. We like our work. The Nisei out here are now working at various jobs as foremen, gang bosses, lift operators, truck drivers, auto mechanics, and checkers.

The weather out here is pretty warm but the evenings get cool fast, so it really helps. Even if the outside is hot the house is pretty cool.....

Yours sincerely,

/s/ Grant Beppu

A letter from Ruby Aoki who is now living at 1920 7th Avenue, Seattle, Washington, reports that she found a job quickly and her sister found the apartment in which they are living in one week. She says;

"The apartment we have is quite compact and just right for the four of us. It certainly feels wonderful to be living normally again.

Monday afternoon I went to see Mr. Daugherty, Relocation Officer in the Seattle WRA Office, and he told me he had talked with you on the phone just recently. Thanks a lot, Mac, for "plugging" for me. He referred me to the Federal Public Housing Authority, so yesterday morning I went to see the Personnel Manager there and spent most of the day filling out application papers and going to the Civil Service Commission and the U.S.E.S. They processed my papers for me right away, so I was able to start working this morning as Clerk-Steno, CAF-3, in the Property and Procurement Section of the FPFA. I think I'm going to enjoy my work here.....

I understand there are about six of us working for the F. P. H. A. but I've only seen one of them yet, Amy Sakaguchi who works in the Office Service Section. She's a former Hunt girl and she's now living in Bellevue with her brother and commutes every day.

During lunch time today, I met Martha Fukuma on the street, so we went to lunch together. She looked so nice and very lady-like all dressed up. She's working for the War Production Board....."

PLEA MADE FOR NISEI

A plea for tolerance in connection with the imminent return of Japanese-Americans to their Pacific coast homes was issued Thursday by Harold S. Fistere, Northwest Area Supervisor of the War Relocation Authority, in a talk before the Tacoma Lions club.

Persons of Japanese ancestry, particularly those 18,000 serving in all branches of the nation's armed forces and in all theaters of the war, should not be blanket victims of racial hatreds aroused by isolated instances of disloyalty, Fistere emphasized.

The WRA supervisor traced the history of his organization telling of its origin following the army's initial voluntary evacuation order and subsequent exclusion order directed at members of the Japanese race. He also revealed that the WRA, its work completed now that no loyal Japanese nor Japanese-American could legally be kept from returning to the coast, would "go out of business" January 1, 1946.

In urging that persons of Japanese ancestry be granted freedom from discriminatory treatment, the speaker asked that they be judged as individuals and that each should be accorded his constitutional rights. He also emphasized that the existence of racial prejudices would be inimicable to post-war business relations with India and China, "which are certain to become industrialized nations within a few years."

This image shows a blank, aged, light brown page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a textured, slightly mottled appearance with some creases and discoloration, characteristic of old paper. The right edge of the page is dark, suggesting the binding or the next page. There is no text or other markings on the page.

RELOCATION IS PROBLEM

Threatened violence against Japanese-Americans was described today as a "major problem" facing the WRA in its effort to restore them to normal life.

Dillon S. Myer, WRA director, told a House appropriations subcommittee in testimony made public today that the agency expects to close its eight remaining relocation centers for Japanese-Americans by the end of the year. He said it will turn the segregation center at Tule Lake, California, over to the Justice department at that time.

This will require moving about 53,000 persons to communities they select and aiding them to reestablish themselves, Myer said.

About 110,000 persons of Japanese ancestry were evacuated from the West coast in 1942 at the start of the war with Japan. The war department lifted its mass exclusion order last January 2. Since then, the WRA has been assisting the evacuees to return to normal communities. Myer said about half are returning to the West coast.

"Our major problem," Myer told the subcommittee, "is one we have had for some time, and that concerns the reluctance, particularly on the part of the old people in the centers, to be relocated because of a feeling of insecurity."

"In certain areas, particularly on the west coast, during the last three months, we have had some occurrences such as shooting into dwellings, boycotts and other atrocities on the part of misguided un-American patriots and a small group of people who have an economic interest in opposing the return of evacuees."

Secretary of Interior Ickes has reported that 20 shootings have occurred at the homes of Japanese-Americans in California since January 2.
