She purchased some type from him, and in 1940 approached him with the idea of commissioning a type from him for the exclusive use of the Eucalyptus Press; she suggested the name "Aurelian," to honor Mills President Aurelia Henry Reinhardt. Goudy was interested in the project, but Miss Keep was unable to find funds to finance it. In 1944 the designer wrote to her to say that he had decided to turn his preliminary designs for the "Aurelian" type into a design that would be called "Goudy Thirty" and released only after his death. Two pages from that four-page letter are included here, along with a letter of 1941 in which Goudy mentions the project.)	1936-1944
