Historical Background

The Jesus People movement was a social phenomenon in Christianity beginning on the West Coast of the United States in the late 1960's and spreading primarily through North America and Europe, before dying out by the early 1980's. It was the major Christian element within the hippie counterculture, or, conversely, the major hippie element within some strands of Protestantism. Members of the movement were called "Jesus People", a phrase coined by Duane Pederson.

Scope and Content

The Jesus People collection consists of a compilation of gifts, mementos and recordings of many "Jesus People." Materials include original documents and recordings from the 1960s-1980s as well as early 21st century reproductions. Contextual items underground newspapers and the Woodstock soundtrack.

Subjects:

- Christian rock music
- Hippies
- Jesus people
- Social movements

Arrangement

The collection is organized by donor. Box 1 includes the gifts of The Sunshine Sisters, Chuck Girard, Diane Schubert, Glen Adkins, Pam Newman, Ed Bilow.

LP's are in Box 2, the gifts of John Randall, Josh Silbernagel, Nancy Gower.

Underground newspapers of the era and items from the Explo '72 Jesus Movement conference and music festival are in Box 3.
