

Emma Clark Papers, 1822-1841

103 items

Gift of Mrs. Ellen Wildschut

Emma Cornea Clark of Cooperstown, New York, married William d. Strobel, an American clergyman whose life is briefly sketched in Appleton's Cyclopedia of American Biography.

The four earliest letters in the collection were written by Emma while a student at Emma Willard's Troy Female Seminary, predecessor of the Emma Willard School. Later letters describe a visit to New York and Washington, D.C. and her married life in New York.

Some of the letters from Emma's husband, William d. Strobel, were written before her marriage, others after her death, and some during his second marriage.

Other correspondents, apparently obscure, describe life in Washington, D.C. and in Michigan Territory, but a drawing bears the name, Lucretia Davidson, and there is a plan for an addition to her poem, "Maritovne".
