Harold O'Neal Collection (#2002-03)

Scope and Content of Collection

This collection is the life's work of filmmaker Harold O'Neal. O'Neal started filming in Southern California in 1939 and continued through the 1980s. His films contain material about a wide variety of subjects on gay and general interest themes. Included is footage of the relocation of Japanese Americans to concentration camps in World War II, female impersonators performing at the Beige Room in San Francisco, gay men socializing in the 1940s including drag and other camp images and gay freedom day parades from 1978-1980. There are also numerous reels documenting his travels abroad with his partner of over 50 years.

Please note this is a preliminary inventory. Collection contents and descriptions are subject to change.
