Physical description: 1063 boxes (531.5 linear ft.)

Arranged in the following series: 1. Photographs and ephemera, arranged alphabetically (boxes 1-229); 2. Name and subject card index (boxes 230-532); 3. Subject card index (authority file), A-T only (boxes 533-536); 4. Clippings files from Los Angeles papers, arranged alphabetically (boxes 537-989); 5. Name and subject card index to negatives (boxes 990-1063).

Notes:

The Los Angeles daily news was originally named the Illustrated daily news by Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr. when he started it in 1923. He copied the tabloid format of the New York daily news, although he rejected lurid and sensational journalism. In 1926 the paper went bankrupt and was taken over by Manchester Boddy, who changed the name to the Los Angeles daily news. He kept the tabloid format, with its heavy reliance on photographs. In 1954 it merged with the Mirror, the afternoon paper of the Los Angeles times, and became the Mirror-News. It lost reporters, columnists, and its more liberal flavor, and ceased publication in the early 1960s.
