Processing History

Inventoried by Cyndi Shein and Ernesto Bassi, 2008.

Historical Background

When the University of California, Irvine set up its administrative organization prior to opening in 1965, a Public Relations unit was established under the Vice Chancellor of Public Affairs. In 1970, Public Affairs was renamed University Relations and reported directly to the Chancellor. University Relations was responsible for maintaining positive relations and communications with the community, including development and publications in a variety of media, such as film. Over the years University Relations evolved into University Communications.

Chronology

1963	Public Information and Publications created as part of the Public Affairs Office.
1968	Public Information renamed Public Information and Internal Communication.
1970	Public Affairs renamed University Relations Office.
1980	University Relations renamed University Relations and Development.
1983	University Relations and Development renamed Budget and University Relations.
1984	Communications Office created to manage Publications and Public Information. Budget and University Relations became University Advancement.
2005	University Communications began reporting directly to the Executive Vice Chancellor instead of University Advancement.

Collection Scope and Content Summary

This collection comprises films of the University of California, Irvine (UCI) campus, buildings, and events during the 1960s and early 1970s.
